PRESIDENT CHARLES McKENNY

The man under whose guidance our college has passed three prosperous years presents a character rich in intellect, firm in will, sympathetic in heart. His sincere interest in every phase of college life, from the erection of fine buildings to the welfare of the humblest Junior, makes him beloved by all. To President Charles McKenny, whose connection with the institution has been a benefit to hundreds of young men and women, we give grateful recognition.

DEAN WHITE

Marion Ballentine White came to the Normal College last fall equipped with excellent natural ability, the best of training in universities and the world at large, and practical experience as adviser of college women. Her work during the year has justified the high expectation with which her coming was awaited. Miss White has great interest in people, ability to get into touch with students and faculty, and great sincerity and simplicity in all dealings. She has the power to see the vital point in complicated questions, and perseverance to work steadfastly toward her aims. During this one year Miss White has made a large place for herself in the college, having gained the loyal support of the best among the faculty, students, and townspeople. Outside of Ypsilanti the Normal may be proud to be represented by a woman who is in the highest sense a lady and a scholar.

Julia Anne King, A. M., M. Pd. Professor Emeritus of History and Social Sciences

Professor King is known and admired for her exceptionally logical mind and her keen analysis of fundamental principles; she has gained wide reputation for her skill in leading her class to right conclusions and her power of making alive and vivid any subject she teaches.

Her ability as a class-room teacher is equaled by her broad grasp of educational needs and ideals, seen alike in the organization of her department and in the counsels and policies of the college. More than this, she is beloved by thousands of men and women who have felt the breadth of her human understanding and the depth of her interest and sympathy.

Edwin A. Strong
Department of Physical Science

He may be regarded as a fortunate mortal who, in his youth, has sat under the instruction of a great teacher, and doubly fortunate is he if the great teacher combines with great intellectual gifts the far rarer and more precious qualities of a pure heart and a noble soul. Happy indeed is our institution in having such a character in the Ne tor of its faculty, Professor Edwin A. Strong, and great is the debt of the youth of Michigan to his work and influence. Our thought of him is best expressed by Horace in the words:-

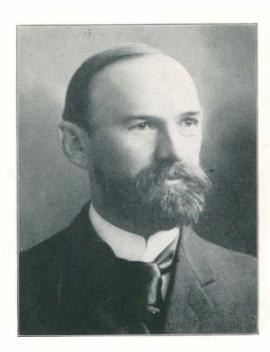

"No fairer spirit hath the earth ere borne and to him none is closer linked than I."

FANNIE CHEEVER BURTON, M. Pd.

Department of Physical Education

The atmosphere of good fellow-hip and hospitality which pervades the gymnasium is due to the gracious personality of Mrs. Burton. Her skill as an instructor in gymnastics is not surpassed by her constant interest in the health and welfare of her girls and in their preparation for their final mission, efficient service as teachers and mothers.

В. L. D'Ooge, А. М., Рн. D.

Department of Ancient Languages
Dr. D'Ooge is one of the best known men upon the campu. He forms no small part in the lives of the students, especially of the men. A an instructor he has passed beyond the experimental tage and has become an authority in ancient language work.

WILLIAM H. SHERZER, M. S., Ph. D.

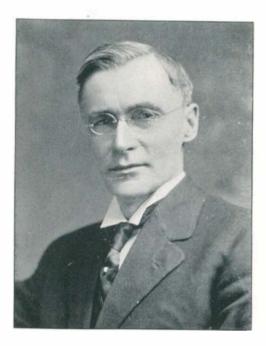

Department of Natural Science

"Speak to Nature and she will teach you."

The Normal students who have the opportunity to study with this scholar of God's handiwork truly are made to realize the truth of the above quotation. Under his magic touch each blade of grass, each pebble has a story of intense interest for us. He teaches us to see things we have never seen before. We learn to love the beauty of the world. But greater than his ability as a teacher we recognize his superb per onality. By his daily life we learn the secret of contentment.

CHARLES O. HOYT, PH. D. Department of Education

I'ully one-half of the student body comes in touch with this admirable scholar. Under his guidance the ancient educators propound their different theorie. But he is larger than his subject. We admire Comenius and Rousseau but we love Dr. Hoyt. Long after we have forgotten the various facts of the Hi tory of Education, we shall remember the brilliant cholar who taught us, and who like Pestalozzi is "Man, Christian, Citizen."

Mark Jefferson, A. B. Department of Geography

Professor Mark Jefferson has been a prominent figure about the Normal for fourteen years. The students who have taken work with him feel that they have been granted an opportunity of associating with one of the most remarkable men on the campus. Scholars in this country as well as abroad appreciate the original work done by Professor Jefferson, as is witnessed by the positions of honor that he holds: as, Contributing Editor of the Journal of Geography, First Vice-president of Association of Geographers, Ex-president Michigan Academy of Science.

ELMER A. LYMAN, A. M. Department of Mathematics

A passenger on a western-bound train suddenly dropped his paper and stared over his spectacles at a Titanic figure slowly moving along the aisle.

"Where have I seen that man before? His majestic bearing, his genial expression seem familiar."

"I believe he is Professor Lyman of the Michigan State Normal College. He is taking a year's vacation in the west where he is writing some valuable books of Mathematics."

"Oh, yes, I remember now that my daughter has often spoken of him. He is admired and loved by all of his students for his excellent but modest display of his wonderful store of knowledge."

Hurou

Webster H. Pearce, A. M. Department of Mathematics

Professor Pearce is the man at the wheel, the captain who is steering the mathematical ship safely through the year 1915 during the absence of Professor Lyman. His enthusiastic spirit is influential in solving many of the campus problems. Think of the "pep" he can produce at a mass meeting, and the confidence he can inspire in a team! Think of the assistance he annually gives the college by his excellent advice and help with the Aurora! Then rightfully term him the "livewire" of the campus.

SAMUEL B. LAIRD, A. M. Department of Psychology

Professor Laird has many warm friends among both the faculty and student body, and he is a radiating center of good nature, even in the classroom as his well patronized classes testify. His cheerfulness, patience, and broad sympathies have made him loved and respected by all. He is an inspiration to all who come into close contact with him. In fact, to know him is to love him, and he is well worth knowing.

NATHAN A. HARVEY, PH. D. Department of Pedagogy

A teacher of teachers is Dr. Harvey. As head of the department of Pedagogy he it is who exemplifie the laws of teaching. Ever ready with a good story, ever cheerful, ever willing to aid us in trouble, he has truly taught us that teaching is a life of service. Not only does he fill a large place in the faculty but in the students' social life his home has lecome a social rendezvous. None of his students will ever forget the pleasant evenings spent at his home, his cheerful stories, his deep sympathy as teacher and friend.

Frederick Alexander Department of Music

Under the directorship of Mr. Alexander, the department of music is one of the strongest in the college. Mr. Alexander happily combine a poetic and artistic nature with sound judgment, based on an academic training in literature and the classics. An untiring devotion to his profession together with his genial friendliness and enthusiasm make him beloved by all who know him. As a teacher he interprets music through art, literature, the classics, and history. thus stimulating an active intere t in music, both as an art and a language. Under the direction of Mr. Alexander the Normal Concert Course has become a very strong one, offering programs by famous artists and orche tras. A fitting mark of appreciation of his ability and standing was his appointment as Dean of the Michigan Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

MISS BERTHA GOODISON Department of Art

Miss Goodison is an artist with a keen aesthetic sense and natural talent enriched by work under great artists and by study of the great masterpieces. Her individual charm expresses itself unconsciously in her work. The department under her supervision tends to produce higher standards of beauty and harmony.

DIMON H. ROBERTS, A. M. Superintendent of Training School

Professor Dimon H. Roberts came to the Michigan State Normal College in 1901. That his work has been eminently successful, his influence only the best, and his helpfulness untiring, is the opinion not only of his associates, but, also, of the superintendents throughout the state and the many Normal students who have had the privilege of coming in contact with him. He is interested in all new educational movements and gives liberally both time and money to ascertain their value for the benefit of the college to which he is so loyal. Success, to him, means service.

Himoro

CARL E. PRAY, A. M. Department of History

It is from Professor Pray that we learn to love history. His ease, his ability, his personality, charm his students. Did you ever hear him tell a story? Ask him for the story of the "First Valentine" and you will listen wide-eyed as he cunningly unravels the adventures of Psyche and Cupid. In his classes dead heroes come to life, ancient personalities speak to us, and we live and fight the battles of long ago.

RICHARD CLYDE FORD, Ph. D. Head of the Department of Modern Languages

Dr. Ford, although a Michigan product, bears a distinct mark of "Made in Germany" and "Patented in France." His keen humor commands attention, his scholarly mind, admiration, and all of his fine qualities combined, the love and respect of everyone who knows him. Always genial, in spite of a sometimes foreboding expression, he makes the most difficult work pleasure, and every hour spent in his classroom a delight. He is, indeed, a friend worth cultivating.

Alice I. Boardman Department of Manual Training

Miss Alice I. Boardman came to the Normal College in the fall of 1901, at which time the Department of Manual Training was established. She gained the confidence of the entire faculty from the beginning and the very general success of her students in the public schools of the state bears testimony to her work in training teachers in their chosen field. Miss Boardman is interested not only in the work of her own department, but co-operates in every activity which makes for the general welfare of the College. Absolute justice in dealing with her associates and students is one of the highest tributes which can be paid to any teacher. This, added to her general efficiency in all lines, makes her one of the most highly valued members of our faculty.

C. S.

EDITH BLACKMAN, B. S. Department of Household Arts.

Miss Blackman occupies her position at the head of the Dome tic Science Department of Household Arts with a quiet dignity which impresses all. Her very bearing expresses her wonderful capability which is founded on a broad knowledge of her work, and on her executive ability. While her dominant personality unconsciously demands and receives the best from everyone. Her charming manner, sincere impartial sympathy with her students win for her a most secure place in their hearts.

J. STUART LATHERS, A. B. Department of Reading and Oratory

Professor Lathers has made his own niche in the Normal College which only he can fill. In spite of his many duties he is never too busy nor in too great a hurry to give us of his time. He is always ready to laugh with us or work with us, collectively or individually. Wherever he is needed he is found, and his left hand is never told what his right does. Indeed, it is only when we stop to count our numbers that we realize what a sincere friend we have in Professor Lathers.

EDITH E. ADAMS, M. PD. Supervisor of Kindergarten

Standing pre-eminently in the eyes of the kindergarten children. as the one who can make stories living scenes, is Miss Edith Adams. She it is whom they gather around with the attitude of "Please tell us a story." With her magic touch, the "Ginger Bread Boy" speaks, "Little Red Riding Hood" becomes a playmate, "The Three Bears" are as real as can be.

Broad minded, sympathetic, ever ready and anxious to lend a helping hand, she has become more than a mere instructor in the lives of the Kindergarten Girls. Each student in the department becomes personally acquainted with her. Each one is strengthened by her splendid personality.

G. M. Walton, A. M. Librarian

In Miss Walton we find a friend indeed—kind, ready, with broad sympathies, keen insight into, and fine appreciation of student problems. She makes the library not only a place to go for literary advice, but a place where we may have for the asking, her personal inspiration and help for our individual needs.

We all remember as new students, her cordial greeting and friendly hand; as Seniors we have reason to appreciate her kind and ready help, and we feel assured that this same friendly interest will extend onward into the years to come.

MARTHA H. FRENCH Department of Household Arts

Perhaps there is no instructor in college that has more need of patience than a teacher of sewing. If to patience we add kindness; to kindness sympathy; to sympathy a motherly interest; then we have an idea of what Mrs. French is to her girls. Interwoven with her theory of how we shall fashion our clothes, are the beautiful thoughts of how we may fashion our lives,—to be true, aspiring, and efficient. As her resourceful mind helps us to design our gowns, so her high ideals of motherhood, love, and Christian happiness give us a model by which to build our characters.

CLEMENS P. STEIMLE, A. B. Secretary-Registrar

Clemens P. Steimle is an alumnus of the Normal College of the class of 1902. After three years in the high schools of Albion and Hillsdale he returned to his Alma Mater as an assi tant in the department of mathematics. When the office of Secretary-Registrar of the college was created, Mr. Steinle was appointed to fill that position. He has met its needs most ably and successfully. In its splendid organization and high degree of efficiency, the general office of the Michigan State Normal is generally conceded to be without an equal in the other colleges of the state.

Wilbur P. Bowen, M. S.

Department of Physical Education

Said a learned professor in a western university, "When you want the latest authority on all matters relating to the human body, consult W. P. Bowen." Say all his pupils and fellow teachers, "His knowledge is great. He is a clear thinker, a fine teacher, a just man, a kind friend."

Himom

FLORUS A. BARBOUR, A. M. Department of English

What a grateful rest to step from the hundrum of the campus to the peaceful quietude of Professor Barbour's class-room! What a privilege to linger there for an hour, charmed by his musical rendering of some beautiful bit of poetry, by the romantic atmosphere of some quaint old ballad!

A scholar of high attainments is Professor Barbour, an artist who makes us see not only the beauties of nature but the beauties of the soul.

CLYDE E. FOSTER
Supervisor of Music Training
Department

In Miss Foster the students of Public School Music find an instructor of unusual ability. She has a keen understanding of the needs of the schoolroom and by her work imparts that understanding to her students. Not only in the classroom is her work felt, but in the social life of the campus he is a large factor. Her place is hard to fill, but student and faculty are one in saying that it is admirably filled.

The Aim of the College

HE NORMAL COLLEGE is not a liberal arts college but di tinctly and exclusively a professional school. Consequently its single purpose is to serve the state of Michigan and through it the nation and the world by training and sending into the state capable, refined and high-minded teachers.

The adjectives, capable, refined and high-minded, are chosen with deliberation. They signify the kind of teachers which the schools need and the kind which the college takes pride in. Its courses of study, its social rules, and the idealism which it is constantly emphasizing have for their end the growth and development of such teachers.

The College has respect for scholarship. It believes that the intellectually blind should not undertake to lead the young "lest both fall into the ditch." It holds to the belief that experience is the great clarifier of ideas and generator of skill, and for that reason it lays stress upon practice teaching as a means of developing clearness of vision and certainty of procedure in the teaching process.

The development and specialization in the public school system demand specialization and diversification in courses, in schools which train teachers. The Normal College is responding to this demand by offering no less than ten distinct courses with many combinations of the ten. By so doing it gives play to all varieties of taste and talents among its students and effectively meets the needs of the public schools.

The College has abiding faith in the principle of democracy. It believes in government by the people in the interest of all the people. Under such government the individual gains initiative, di cernment and self-control. Because of its faith in democracy, the College has made it possible for the student body to have a voice and influence in the administration of the College in those directions which immediately touch the welfare of students. The College believes that the ideal conditions for student and teacher exist where there is between student and teacher mutual regard for each other and common love for knowledge and seeking after the highest and best.

The past of the College is honorable, made so by the faculties and students of the past; its present is in our hands, faculty and students of 1915; may it be our good fortune to add to its character and fame.

The Alumni Association

HERE are two factors which largely determine the strength or weakness of an institution of learning—its student body and its alumni. By the conduct of its students, by their interest in the work to be done, their loyalty to the establi hed customs, and their regard for what is high and worthy, the character of a school is properly judged. Similarly, through the work of its alumni the strength of the principles which a school emphasizes becomes apparent. Their devotion to the cause to which the chool is dedicated, their maintenance of the ideals which it upholds, and the degree of the support they accord to the policies which the school inaugurates, are all evidences of the influence which the school exerts in the lives of those who come under its direction.

The Normal College has good reason to be proud of the successes which its alumni have attained in their cho en fields of service. North and south, east and west, in all grades of education from kindergarten to university; in the field of the specialist as well as in that of the general teacher; in the homes of the nation in all lines of public service; the alumni of the Normal College have attained distinction. The influence which has been exerted by the thousands who during the past sixty years have gone out from Ypsilanti, is beyond the ability of anyone to estimate. It is worthy of note that this influence has been, almost without exception, for the better things in life, and that our alumni are everywhere counted on the side of the forces making for advancement. No school can boast of greater things in this regard than can the Normal College.

The Alumni Association is the connecting link between the Normal College and its representatives in active life. Through this organization an effort is made to keep in touch with graduates and former students, to acquaint them with the progress made as well as the needs of their Alma Mater, and to foster a relationship of mutual helpfulness and regard. During the past few years much has been accomplished by way of bringing the College and its alumni into fuller cooperation. By making the Secretary of the College the Secretary of the Alumni Association, a step has been taken towards the establishment of an office that will serve as a permanent connection between the College and its former students; while the action of the Normal College in setting aside one day of Commencement week as Alumni Day has served to bring back to Ypsilanti each year a constantly increasing number of former students. Everyone acquainted with the situation realizes that much more can be accomplished along these lines, but the present outlook is hopeful indeed.

The alumni and former students of the Normal College can do much to advance its interests. There are needs to which these can minister as no others can. The Normal College has assumed an important place among the teachers' colleges of the country. It has entered a field of limitless possibilities for the cause of the professional training of teachers. If it is to maintain its present importance and continue it service for the schools of the nation, it must have the active cooperation of all its alumni. The needs are many, both in a material and in an ideal sense. The alumni of the College constitute its one best asset. Through the Alumni Association it is possible to render valuable assistance. As individuals it is to be hoped that all former students will keep in close touch with the old school, will give support to all its policies, return often to its halls and keep green the memories of college days. May Yp i's interests be their interests, her welfare be their own.

October Thirty-first
Did she have the Assumption to think she could win in football? Who? Oh! didn't you know? Assumption 10, Normal 32.

November Fourth
We try the pole rush here today, and our men reached the top—even though "Rynie" opposed us. Polish Seminary 12, Normal 27.

November Sixth
Exit "Rushing"—Enter the formal invitations. Campu bright with pledge ribbons.

November Ninth
Interclass tug of war. The Juniors returned singing, "When the Seniors crossed the river we were there."

November Fourteenth,
A cold day, and a cruel world! We fight Kazoo.
Tragic Setting—Audience—Cold Feet.
Team—Defeat.

November Treenty-first

Once more we are happy. Final score of the football game with Hillsdale puts us on top again.

December Thirteeuth
The Normal Choir repeats their Christmas concert in St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit. Evidently we are not the only ones who appreciate excellent music!

December Sixteenth

Have you seen the Junior colors?

Stand on Zwergel's corner and watch the care-free young ters march proudly past with their new blue-and-white toques.

December Nineteenth

Cheer up! Even though we do have to go home now, we may come back in two weeks. Happy Christmas!

January Fifth
We are here again! Let's go up and pay our entrance fees while we have the money!

January Ninth

The boys play the first basketball game of the season with the Detroit Law College. May we always keep up with the law as well as we did this time!

January Fifteenth
At Orchard Lake the basketball team is defeated. 'Twas a good fight.

January Twenty-second
Everyone out for the twenty-sixth annual oratorical contest.

January Twenty-third

The agony of dress suits and danceworn feet begins.

February Third
Poli h Seminary advances to the front.
Hats off to the Poles.

February Sixth
Hard fought basketball game against Hillsdale. We win.

February Eighteenth
One notch nearer State Normal Champion hip. We defeat "Kazoo" in ba ketball.

February Twenty-sixth

Mt. Pleasant-M. S. N. C. debate.

Record breaking crowd sees the boys

WIII.

March Fifth

Men meet for a meet. Rah for the Seniors.

State Oratorical conte t at Alma. Good for Alma-Mater.

March Twelfth and Thirteenth
Junior-Senior Girls' Meet. Who won the meet? Seniors! Who said so?
We did. Who are we? One-Nine-OneFive. Rah!

March Twenty-sixth
After twelve hard weeks of work, we prepare to spend care-free days in vacation.

April Sixth
Spring bonnets and happy faces make the campus bright.

May Seventeenth

How good our breakfast tastes at Starkweather on a beautiful May morning.

June Twentieth
We begin our resolutions for next year at Baccalaureate.

June Twenty-first
We plant happy memories of old M. S.
N. C. with the Ivy.

June Twenty-second
Alma Mater opens her arms to embrace her long absent children. The Alumni return.

June Twenty-third

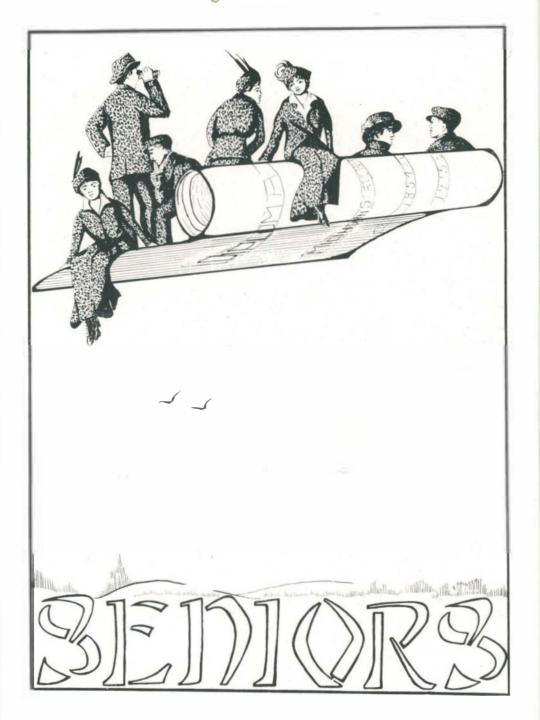

Commencement. The bubble bursts.

We are no more happy college folk, but prosaic members of a cold business world.

A Positive Propaganda for Peace

An extract from the oration given by Mr. A. A. Metcalf in the State Peace Contest at Ann Arbor, March nineteenth, winning second place.

The world is ever in quest of the highest good. Individuals may fluctuate between the noble and the base but the universal soul ever climbs upward. The problem of the ages has been to find the mean whereby that highest good might be attained. Greece ought it through the intellect, Judaism through the emotions. Rome through political organization, the Middle age through the church, the eighteenth century through the individual, and the twentieth century now seeks it through an enlightened society. The goal is happiness, reached only by a complete and balanced development of the individual. Deep in the heart of humanity and forcing itself now into social consciousness is a conviction that there is only one foundation upon which this better superstructure can be built. That foundation is peace. * * * *

A strong peace influence in the part has been economic needs. True even when nations were commercially self-sustaining, it is truer now when interdependence is universal. The Dane eats meat from Argentina and bread from American wheat ground by English machinery made possible by Spanish ore. England trembles when ubmarines threaten her food ships and Germany faces starvation the moment her commerce is stopped. * * * Yet vast trade relations could not stem the tide of war. * * * The present crisis but makes doubly clear that a program of arbitration, to be effective, must have not only governmental approval but the honest and intelligent sincerity of the masses behind it. * * * Today we are in the midst of a propaganda represented in every one of the greatest powers and finding its clearest expression in the socialist movement whose watchword is, "Down with war." At the beginning of the present conflict nearly one-half of the French Chamber of Deputies was socialists. * * * They assured the world that war could not come. Then Ferdinand was assassinated; Austria's ultimatum to Servia followed; Germany advanced to Belgium: France, Russia, and England threw their armies into the field: treaties were broken; commercial relations ceased.

These combined did not and cannot succeed. What hope is there ever for a lasting peace? This hope—that these agencies have been but negative. The nations of today face the dawn of a new era. Economic need, mutual agreem nt and even, we hope, the one-sided cry against war are behind us; the positive force for peace is vet untried. That force is nothing less than an intelligent, world-wide and, above all, aggressive propaganda for peace. * *

* * Nations are today at war because they are but nation-wide in their views. Peace measures heretofore employed failed because they did not make men international. The war parties know the secret when they create by press and platform a demand for an enlarged army and navy. The secret is public opinion and the peace advocate will not succeed until they enlighten the great common people on the signifiance of war and peace.

The need then is a positive program of public enlightenment for peace. What shall be the means? "Peace follows justice, justice follows law, and law follows political organization." The next step must be the formation of an international society to create a sentiment for peace—peace for every member of the human race as the only condition of happine s. * * *

Where shall be cradled the positive propaganda for peace? O America! To you is given the high privilege of teaching the nations the foundations of their happine s—peace.

A Voice from the Past

An extract from the oration given by Mr. E. D. STANBERY in the Michigan Oratorical League Contest at Alma, Michigan, March fifth, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

As the rays of the sun illume the universe, so do great personalities light up the story of man. The deeds and actions, the leadership and genius, the heroism and devotion of individuals mark epochs in the world progress. * * * When war clouds heralded the approach of the mighty conflict which was to determine the fate of the first great experiment of democracy, America gave to the world her towering genius, her peerless leader — Abraham Lincoln.

On a desolate frontier far from the haunts of civilization, among poor whites, wretched and untutored except in the ways of poverty, a cheerless window by day, a tallow dip by night; these were the companions of his childhood; this the stock from which he sprang; this the sombre loom that wove the colors of the future. His heritage was that of his time, rich in promise, if strength of character and firmness of mind could flourish in a soil of hopeless misery. With a splendid devotion to purpose through poverty and toil, through trial and disappointment, Abraham Lincoln won his way from the depths of obscurity to the leadership of a great people.

Through four terrible years war reigned upreme in this land. The nation offered up her very life in defense of constitutional principles. Yet through it all the courage of the soldier, the reliance of the state man, and the hope of the people centered in the strength and guidance of that burdened, saddened man who took the helm when the Ship of State was sinking. * * *

A little over one hundred years ago the constitution of this country was sted. * * * One hundred years ago we were an experiment; today we adopted. are a splendid reality. From ocean to ocean, magnificent in its splendid i olation, lies a domain that embodies all that is rich and powerful and mighty, a land of teeming millions, of beautiful cities and landscapes, of countless factorie and numerous industries, in every town and village a schoolhouse, on every hillside a church,—verily a land flowing with milk and honey, the most glorious domain that ever cradled a race.

But, alas! This Golden Age has degraded us. Though powerful among the nations, we lack the nobler virtues of the soul and the finer sentiment of the heart. In the land of opportunity, where all is prosperity and no man boasts an earthly king, we bow down to earthly power; we worship mammon; we eulogize wealth and power in preference to patriotism and integrity. * * *

Like Hercules of old, this young republic now stands at the parting of the ways. Industrial advantages and social pleasures lure us on. But, hark! Above the siren call, above the lure of glittering gold, above the reckless race for power me thinks I hear a voice from out of the past, strong and prophetic, crying to us across the years. It is the voice of Lincoln pleading with us to be loyal to the cause of justice, to be true to the teachings of the constitution. Oh, American! Give heed to this warning, to this prophetic voice. In the midst of social corruption and political degeneracy when the finer virtues of patriotism and manhood are being forgotten, men of Lincoln's type are needed. * * * A vision of the future arises. * * * The hosts of this republic are assembled in procession. I hear the strains of the national anthem. A triumphant shout arises. Every head is bared, every eye wet with emotion, every hand raised in reverence to the banner in the dome of azure blue, reflecting in its glorious folds the rejuvenated strength and valor of a nation. " "

To the Seniors

HAT wondrous joy of college days Has lifted me to heights unknown! Il hat subtle fragrance of the pines Has thrilled me as 'cross the grounds I roam! O Spirit of these dusky walls, Whose very presence strengthens me! In thee I see eternal light And all I hope to be. What hopes and dreams within these walls, Or flutt'ring thoughts, imperfect things, Have sought expression in our work! Yet youth but mounts on feeble wings. Sweet fantasies of youth that soar To find the joy of friendship sweet, A wealth of happiness in work, Rostrum and gridiron victories or defeat: All form the memories of a school supreme With whispering halls and verdant lawns. My lips are mute to paint in meagre words youth's dream. Alas! A sadness o'er me steals, For we must part. How swift the years have sped! And we as Seniors no more meet. Life's battles are before us. We hear the challenge to the front. Our preparation is complete. With heads alert and cager hearts We all are ready for the strife, And lifting up the hands of truth, We ask the gift,—the gift of life. Nor can we hope nor yet believe That our two hands with one swift stroke May life's most perfect dream achieve. And yet we come—we must not fail, To different fields in distant lands Until we span the fleeting years And meet again beyond life's veil.

Annals of the Junior Class of 1915

N SEPTEMBER twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred fourteen, the doors of Michigan State Normal swung open to receive the annual number of would-be teachers, divided into two groups: our superiors in intellectuality and experience, the Seniors, with whom are those who are to become the finished product by the close of this school year—and our humble selves, the Junior.

We, of the second clas, entered in great fear and trembling, for we were sore afraid. On our entrance into the main building we were confronted by a blackboard bearing in regulation scare-print the words, "DON'T ASK FOOL QUESTIONS!"—we were too frightened to ask any questions. Some of those who wished to classify in Physical Education, after having been carefully instructed to go to Mrs. Burton, finally found themselves in Professor Barbour's room, or approached Miss Walton with the question, "May I take tennis and swimming my first term?"

On Monday, September twenty-eighth, the first classes for the term were called, and our memory books contain quite vivid accounts of how we tramped through the halls in a vain endeavor to locate our particular clas -rooms.

November ninth dawned bleak and cheerless; this was the day of the Junior-Senior Pull. By four o'clock in the afternoon a large crowd of students had assembled on the banks of the stream. We waited. Finally as the dreary November twilight came hurrying over the land and rosy countenances began to assume purple hues, our heroes received the signal to "tug." The handkerchief marking the center of the rope wavered back and forth; it was more thrilling than a Charley Chaplin Comedy. The Jeniors, through their usual ingenuity and quick-wittedness, saved themselves from an icy bath. But the Juniors had won! Hearse screams of joy burst from our throats.

But the Juniors had won! Hearse screams of joy burst from our throats.

November eleventh: The Big Rush of the year. We are too full (of unpleasant memories) for expression.

Friday, December eighteenth, school closed for Christmas vacation, and we journeyed happily homeward. Reports of the term's work followed us.

In the latter part of February a couple of assemblies were turned over to mass-meetings to arouse enthusiasm among the Juniors and to increase the enrollment for the Meet only a few weeks away. "Jerry" made several right-to-the-point remarks, and some of the Junior girls borrowed enough of her "pep" to enroll soon afterward in the events for which they were needed.

The Seniors won the Boys' Meet held on the fourth of March, by a large number of points.

Thursday, March eleventh, the Juniors held a mass-meeting from 6:00 to 7:00 in Normal Hall.

On the evenings of March twelfth and thirteenth, occurred the Girls' Meet, which the Seniors won by twenty-three points. We lost out in the preliminaries and were a little behind all during the race: but we began to do things Saturday night and won enough events to make the outcome doubtful and to cause the Seniors some long moments of anxiety. The fact that we proved so strong an opposing force was due in large part to our good-natured and enthusiastic general manager, "Jerry."

Of course, we have been a much stronger, better organized class than any Junior class before us. It is only a law in the progress of any educational institution that each class shall profit by the mi-take made by those preceding them, and shall improve each year.

The Sport of Kings

A recent cartoon represents a king engaged in royal pastime. He sits behind a cannon whose single, round black eye stares into a smoky sky. Sternvisaged, able-bodied men are drawn up beside him. Men they are in the prime of life, trained in the art of war. Carelessly, grimly, he places a human cartridge in the cannon. A second passes. Death has claimed him. Man by man the line diminishes. Life after life answers the bugle call of eternity. But the king has no fear for there are other troops to call forth when taps are sounded for the last soldier in the company. Smoke obscures the picture, but to it the cartoonist gave the suggestive, the dreadful title, "The Sport of Kings,"—"The Sport of Kings."

EVA RUTH ARENT

Today, as never before, public opinion is determined to know the real causes of war. Even the laborers of the world are demanding with an insistence that requires an explanation, "Why go we and our brothers to war?" * * *

The causes of war are imbedded deep in the strata of human life. Throughout the early development of the English nation it was war, war, war, until at the dawn of the thirteenth century the wealthy barons demanded of King John and his coterie recognition of their rights as English citizens. This was the first step in the direction of popular responsibility in government. Evidence of their growing capability was manifested in their discovery that that odious tyrant engaged in warfare and oppressed his own people for no other reason than that he might be all powerful. * * *

This old out-worn precedence has been projected into the twentieth century and with what result? Today, across the gray, sounding Atlantic, the lowering sky is dark with rain as though the elements would conceal the light of man intreuched to kill his brother. * * *

But think you people of a peaceful nation, that what you have just witnessed are the most dreadful consequences of war? In our sister countries are thousands of stricken homes. There stands the mother waiting for her boy who will never return. Yonder is the widow, a babe in her arms. All about are once happy dwellings now in smouldering ruins.

From such conditions, nations have sought various ways of escape. For forty years Europe has been accumulating armaments and war material along with the suspicions, falsehoods and ambitions which have attended and vitalized them. But do great armaments, the preparation for war, insure peace? Not only have they completely failed to preserve peace, but this very preparedness has opened the gates and let loose the dogs of war. But perhaps the much-heralded panacea—that of the financial control by banks of the nation's resources is adequate. If that be the solution, why last August were the thunderbolts of war hurled seemingly out of a clear sky? Why? Because the governments of Germany, France and England had long been preparing for this struggle.*

What, then, is the remedy, if there be one? Citizens of the United States, does it not lie in transferring the responsibilities of war to the common people? World-wide peace cannot be attained through the efforts of one, or of a few, but of the multitude. * * * It has been said that, "Peace rules the day, when reason rules the mind." But that day will dawn upon the nations of the world only when it shall be impossible to declare war except by the direct vote of all men and women; only when the divine right of the common people has been recognized and they themselves say, "We will not go forth to war until we ourselves have voted for it and are willing to face our Creator with bloody hands and try to justify our conduct." * * *

Degree Class of 1915

HE members of the faculty look back with pride to that memorable day when the degree class of 1915 entered this College as Juniors. The classifiers beamed at the assemblage of promising young climbers after wisdom. Even the President glowed with joy at what seemed to him to be an omen of success awaiting him as he entered upon his first year's work here.

As the weeks passed, whether our lot was prosperity or adversity we hastened on, struggling for the success which our instructors assured us was inevitable for those who really did their best.

When a year had sped its course, our halls again were opened to an entering class, but alae, how different. The classifiers gasped and worked for hours trying to untangle the difficulties into which these little ones had stumbled. The President's smile was replaced by a sadly worried look as he hurried around the building, or consulted the Juniors in his office. But they did their best, and as we look back, feelings of pride are mingled with those of scorn which we felt at first.

Time went on and we became addressed as DEGREE STUDENTS. How everyone looked up to us, and how we swelled with pride at our right to enter the Degree Class meetings! We are the largest degree class in the history of M. S. N. C., due largely to the fact that our numbers have been increased by the first regular three-year Household Arts Class.

With spring came Caps and Gowns. Was the donning of these an entirely joyful occasion? Be assured that then, if not before, we realized how soon we should have to give way to another class who would pace Normal Hall as lords of the domain. Everyone felt the depression of the approaching separation.

And now when June comes and our new auditorium opens its doors to receive us, the first class to graduate there, as we cross the campus with our stately tread, our cup of joy will be full. But our hearts will always beat a little faster, and our eyes gleam a little brighter as we think of our days spent here and of our love for this, our best friend, our Alma Mater.

HOSPITAL AND NURSE CROSS

Emma R. Cross
College Nurse

PERHAPS no one on the campus fills a larger place in the lives of the students than does Miss Cross. Ever on the alert for students who are ill, she has learned to know a large part of the student body. A tender nurse to the ill, a pleasing companion to the convalescent, a faithful councilor to the robust, she remains ever a true companion to those who, unfortunate in becoming ill, are fortunate in making her acquaintance. Health Cottage has removed a part of the dread attending "illness away from home." With its airy rooms, its good things for sick folks to eat, and the watchful care administered by Miss Cross it has become one of Normal College's largest assets.

Athletics

HE first of athletic sports to become a feature of student life at Ypsilanti was baseball, which began in the early 80's or perhaps in the late 70's. Track athletics started in 1888 and tennis in 1889. Around 1800 several track meets, then called field day, were held. Football began about 1800. The Normal joined the Michigan Intercollegiate Association in 1895 and took part in its track meets for six or seven years, baseball and tennis being a part of the meet. In 1895 or 1896 basketball was begun. Up to that time there had been no hired coaches, but in the later 90's a few men from the U. of M. were secured for short terms to coach the teams before important contests. In 1900 Coach Teetzel was employed by the College, serving for three years. Beginning with 1903 the policy was instituted of employing an alumnus or a university athlete to coach the football and baseball team. In 1910 Mr. F. G. Beyermann of New York was secured as coach of track and basketball, with general oversight of all the athletic work, special coaches being employed for baseball and football. LeRoy N. Brown of the class of 1908 served in the latter capacity from 1911 to 1914, when Dr. Ransom took his place. The present season has been a successful one, football and basketball teams winning most of their games against strong teams, and our track team is one of the strongest the College ever had.

"Athletics for everybody" has been the motto of the Normal College from the earliest days, and a very large percentage of all the men are enrolled every term in some form of athletics. About 75 per cent. of all the men in College are in athletics this year. And athletics for girls is also an important feature of our College life. About one hundred girls enroll in tennis classes and about as many more play the games for pleasure at other hours. Hockey and swimming also attract large numbers. Most important of all in this direction is the Girls' Meet, which comes off each March and enrolls as participants about 500 girls, representing the two classes. The Meet this year was unusually interesting and successful, the upper class winning by a margin of about two per cent.

Great things were expected of the team because it was practically made up of veteran player. The one problem of the year was to develop a quarterback. Not being able to solve this problem is probably the reason why we lost games. The season was closed in a fitting manner by defeating our old traditional foe, Hillsdale.

strongest football teams of the M. I. A. A.

Since 1912 our football strength has been felt by the other colleges of the state. These colleges are allied in an association, and it is impossible to arrange a schedule with them. Each year we are forced to wait until the other colleges have their schedules made out and then we can get only what is left. To join this association would be a good thing for us and the other colleges. They need the strong opposition we are capable of giving them and we need the games. By bringing the proper forces together we can get into the association. Our teams could then compete for the championship of the state and with an even break of luck could in a year or two be at the head of the M. I. A. A.

HE first call for the soccer squad at the beginning of the Fall term brought out eight of last year's men and some twenty-five recruits. Some of the new men knew something of the game, which is destined to take the place of Rugby football in many high schools, but the majority of them knew nothing about the game. In its short history in the Normal, the prospects for a winning team never seemed brighter.

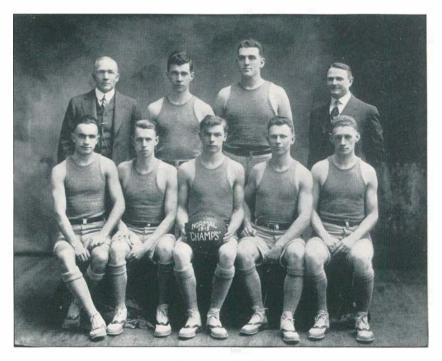

While we gained much by having such a large number of experienced men to build a team around, we leave only one of this year's team for next year, Captain-elect Springer. Yet we hope that he will be able to turn out a team even better than the team of 1914.

The bringing of some of the leading soccer teams of Detroit here seemed to arouse many to the fact that there are 17H two veterans back and a large number of recruits fighting to fill the vacancies of left and right guards and right forward, the prospects for a winning basketball team were unusually bright.

The schedule this year was somewhat different from that of la t year, due to the fact that such teams as Detroit "Y" and Ann Arbor "Y" were eliminated. This was done so that more college teams could be met.

Considering that only two veterans were back, the season was remarkable for the number of games won. Nine victories out of twelve games were added to the long list of triumphs of former years. Not only in our own state, but also in Ohio, has the name of this school been established. We hope that the teams which follow will be able to carry on the good work done by the team representing the Normal College in 1915.

DEYO LELAND, CAPTAIN

A CCORDING to those who know the history of Normal's track team, the team representing the college this year is the strongest ever turned out. It is a remarkably well balanced team, especially in dashes and long distance men, hurdlers, pole vaulters, jump and weight performers. The indoor season opened with a decided victory for the Seniors over the Juniors. This meet had much to do in preparing the team for the season. The meet with the Detroit Y. M. C. A. team proved to be a stumbling block on the indoor schedule. The Normal men did good work but were up against some of the best men in Michigan. The men can be praised for doing as well as they did. The indoor season closed by the Normal men winning the Western Michigan Intercollegiate Championship. Six men journeyed to Grand Rapids, competing against the college and Y. M. C. A. team of Michigan. Their work was remarkable. Not only did they win the championship by a large margin, but they put Ypsilanti on the map in that part of the country.

The outdoor season has better prospects than the indoor season has had. The schedule opened at Hillsdale, May 10. Then followed a triangular meet with Kalamazoo and Albion Colleges at Albion, May 15. We met Olivet here May 22, and clashed with Alma May 29.

THE first call for battery candidates was i sued about two weeks before Spring vacation. Only three men reported: Kishigo, veteran, and Armstrong, for the catching position, and Torrey for the mound job. The call was issued for all candidates for the team as soon as school opened after vacation. About forty men responded, a large majority of them recruits. Soon the squad was cut to the eighteen men who showed the most promi e and real work began.

The first game against Adrian was cancelled because of rain. One week later Battle Creek came here and was defeated 5 to 3, in weather more suitable for football than baseball. The next game was with the All-Fresh team of Ann Arbor. This game was ended at the end of the fifth inning with the score 3 to 2 in favor of the Fresh. The Normals just began to hit their stride in the third inning and if the game had lasted the full nine innings the result might have been different. One week later the Fresh came to Ypsilanti, and in one of the most ragged game—seen on Normal in years, defeated the Normals 8 to 2. The next encounter was with the Polish Seminary. The team, strengthened by the addition of Lawson, played the Poles to a standstill, losing 3 to 0. Only six hits were made during the entire game. The Normals weakened in the middle of the third inning and with errors allowed the Poles to run in their three runs. After that the Normals settled down and played airtight ball. The team seems to have struck its stride and promises to give Kalamazoo a fight for honors when they meet. On account of the Aurora going to press, the result of the remaining games cannot be given. However, the team hopes to win the remainder of the schedule.

Student Council

BELIEVING that self-government is the only true government, the student body of the Normal College has been given an opportunity to express public sentiment upon all matters relating to the college life. Composed of representatives from the three classes and from the leading organizations, the Student Council deals with all matters for the advancement of college good. This year the organization was placed upon a new basis, changing from an advisory board to an organized executive board. The members for the coming year will be elected in April, and sit with the present Council during the remaining sessions.

OR some time it has been felt among the women students of this college that there should be some organization among them, not only to increase their spirit of unity and sense of responsibility toward one another, but also to deal with such questions concerning student life as do not come under the supervision of the faculty.

Late in the autumn term, a constitution was adopted and officers were elected. With the new term began the work of the organization. The student population was divided into twenty-three districts with approximately fifty women to each district. The chairmen of these districts, together with the four officers of the Association and the president of the Y. W. C. A., form the executive board, which meets every two weeks. Each district chairman is expected to aid in the organization of the larger houses in her district.

The work of the organization is well completed and the new association promises to be a great success. Election of new officers took place in April, but the new board will not formally enter upon its duties until September.

Men's Union

HE Men's Union came into existence, after more or less spasmodic agitation covering a period of several years, during which time the feeling had grown among the men of the college that some kind of organized action was needed to bring them into closer touch with each other and the needs of the college. With these purposes in view, organization was begun October 6, 1914, at a mass meeting of the men. Within the next few days complete organization was effected and active work begun. Even before the adoption of a constitution the Union proposed the election of two all-school cheer leaders in response to a generally felt need of organized, consistent rooting on the athletic field and elsewhere. Jameson and Straub were elected and the Union awarded them sweaters in recognition of their services.

Following out the purposes for which it was organized, the Union has exerted itself to bring the men in as intimate touch with each other and the needs of the college as possible. The work of making mass meetings worthy of the name has been taken up and handled successfully. The men have been brought together socially at least once each month since the organization in October, one banquet attended by practically every Union man has been held. Numerous important topics have been discussed at Union meeting, and the men have had a chance to make their wishes known in regard to a number of important questions. Steps have been taken to bring more men to the Normal and it is thought that the efforts made in that direction will materially increase the male enrollment next year. Since its organization, the Union has constituted itself a kind of vigilance committee of the whole and has not hesitated to take anything looking to the best interests of the college. The membership of the Union is now over two hundred and fifteen and i- constantly increasing.

The success of the organization has been due to no small extent to the loval support it has received from the faculty in the work it has undertaken.

The constitution provides for the election of officers in April of each year, and with the staff already installed at the beginning of each year, the Union will undoubtedly find itself in a position to do more every year toward accomplishing the things for which it came into existence.

The Normal Civic League

OW may we, as teachers, elevate exi ting social and political condition?" is the problem that the Normal Civic League has concerned itself with during the past year. The active work of inve tigation and application has been carried on by five branches of the organization. The group in Miss Buell's charge has a sumed the responsibility of the Current News Bulletin in Normal Hall. The items posted there keep one in touch with the recent events of the European War, with the work of Congress and the State Legislatures, with the progress made by the Anti-aloon League, and the Equal Suffrage campaign. That the busy student with hours crowded to overflowing gladly welcomes and fully appreciates this opportunity to acquaint him elf with the important current items, finds its own testimonial in the interested reader one generally finds gathered around the bulletin board.

The second group, working with Miss Goddard, has for its motto, "The City Beautiful." It was this committee that gave the suggestion to the Senior class of 1914 to beautify the Training School grounds with shrubbery. They also took charge of the Arbor Day exercises in a rural school near Ypsilanti and received their full measure of well deserved praise.

The Equal Suffrage Committee, meeting bi-weekly, has displayed great interest in the cause so ably championed by its chairman, Miss Downing. The programs, devoted to vari us definite phases of suffrage work, have been arranged by the member of the group, and some actual suffrage propaganda work planned. In addition, two very interesting address es have been given, one on "The Feminist Movement," by Miss Downing, the other on "The International Suffrage Convention," at Budapest, given by Miss Laura Smith, then a delegate from the State of California, now a member of the library taff of the Normal.

The study of household problems has opened up a new field to the college student. To quote Miss Stinson, chairman of the Home Economic branch: "The teacher's work touches very closely the home life of the child. She has many opportunities for making suggestions to parents and pupils bearing on the beautifying of their lives. The teacher herself needs to study the thing which will make for her own enjoyment in her home life, even though she live in but one room when not in the school room."

For three reasons this group meets bi-monthly to discuss very freely, "Waste in the Home," "Purity of Foods," "Comparisons of Diets," "What the Children Should Have in their Lunch Boxes," "Decoration of the Home and the Schoolroom," and such allied topics.

Through the efforts of the Anti-Saloon League Committee, working under the direction of Mr. Walker, the general attitude of the Normal College toward the saloon has been made public by the signatures of over a thousand students to a petition favoring the passage of a law prohibiting the sale of liquor within five miles of any state institution. This committee is co-operating with Mr. Cramer, secretary of the Intercollegiate Association.

The Civic League believes in applying its embodied principles to the social needs of its immediate representatives, and not only are intellectual treats prepared for them by the engaging of peaker to present various civic problems, but also an annual picnic in May sends the members forth from the college with sati fying memories of the good things, mental and material, with which their associations with the campul organization has brought them in touch.

Starkweather Hall

Starkweather Hall embodies just one word, "Welcome." Its doors are never locked, no passport of class, organization, or creed is necessary to admit whoever will enter there. Officially it is the home of the Students' Christian Association, but the deepest desire of those who serve there is that it may become in truth the college home of all students. In that spirit of friendliness, and with that purpose, the big parties and small gatherings around the open fire, the meetings in the assembly rooms upstairs, the inviting table of current magazines, the comfortable, big chairs, all are planned.

"'Tis Heaven alone that is given away,
"Tis only God may be had for the asking."

The Y. W. C. A.

THE Young Women's Christian Association is an organization whose express object is "to unite the women of the institution in loyalty to Jesus Christ." Religion is not negation, it is life. In this confidence the association attempts to round out the lives of the students wherever life is lacking. To meet the deep need for friendship we have had all kinds of good times, which offered a chance to get acquainted, jolliest of which was our children's party. To meet our desire for dramatic expression and awaken us to the world beyond the seas, we have given the Foreign Association Pageant. Visits of national secretaries, Miss McArthur, Miss Edith Dabb, Miss Lucy Helen Pearson, and Miss Bertha Conde kept us in touch with the largest woman's organization in the world of which we are a part kept us in touch with the largest woman's organization in the world, of which we are a part. This year we have had the privilege through the co-operation of the University of Michigan, of bringing to the students speakers of national reputation along religious lines—Dr. Henning of Boston, Dr. Huget of Detroit. Dr. Montgomery and Dr. Fitch of Andover Theological Seminary. The need for intensive Bible study has been met by the splendid classes under Dr. Hoyt, Miss Buell, and Professor McKay.

HE Young Men's Christian Association has endeavored during the year now drawing to a close to uphold to the men of the college, to the citizens of Ypsilanti, and to the world, the worth of its three principles of growth,—physical, mental, and spiritual. Attempts to accomplish the aims of the Association have been well backed by the organization as a body. Those who have participated in the hospitality of the Association feel enriched because of opportunities realized.

Oratorical Association

HE Oratorical Association this year entered upon a new era in its history. The expenses of its activities are now largely cared for by a special tax, thus putting it on the same financial basis as athletics. Next year it is expected that its work will be entirely cared for in this way. Along with this change, its governing body, the Oratorical Board, has been correspondingly enlarged. Its personnel this year is as follows: Rufus R. Humphrey, '15, president; Nat W. Hopkins, '16, vice-president and reporter; Oliver Johnson, '15, secretary; Orlo Robinson, '15, treasurer; Lucile Johnson, '15, delegate of Portia Club; Bess O'Brien, '15, delegate of Minerva Club; Veola Gifford, '15, delegate of Laonian Club; Harold A. Hender hot, Junior degree, state delegate; Harry Hubbard, '16, delegate of Lincoln Club; Wendell P. Gee, '15, delegate of Webster Club; Owen A. Rood, '15, delegate of Forum Club; H. Ray Russell and Georgiana Hathaway, delegates of Degree class; Hugh Morrison and Hilda Wells, delegate of the Senior Class; Phillip Boyce and Mayme Young, delegates of the Junior Class, and Professor F. B. McKay, faculty representative. This more universal membership has added prestige and dignity as well as experience to the counsels of the Board.

Several important oratorical event took place last year after the Aurora had gone to press. The second annual Comedy-Concert was quite up to the standard and served to settle the conviction that this institution is to remain an annual college event. The general manager was Reuben A. Grettenberger, '14, who proved himself a capable official, and capacity audiences attended the performance. May twenty-second and twenty-third. For the first time, a Junior Public Speaking Contest was scheduled June tenth. It is hoped by this means to stimulate intere t in oratory during the first year and thus bring out oratorical material for the Senior year. Elwood D. Stanbery, '15, won first place and fifteen dollars in money, and Hugh Morrison, '15, was awarded second place and ten dollars in money. The annual Interpretive Reading Contest was won by Lucie L. Mills, '14, who was awarded a ten-dollar gold piece. Miss Lucile Norris, '14, took second place and a five-dollar gold piece. In debate, a dual contest took place May first with Olivet, on the question, "Resolved, that the government ownership of railroads in the United States is desirable." Our team sent to Olivet consisted of Rufus R. Humphrey, '15; A. G. Hitchcock, '15, and Hector A. McCrimmon, '15; while H. Ray Russell, Degree; Hugh Morrison, '15, and Roland Welch, '14, defended the negative on the home platform. Olivet won both debates by a one to two decision, partly accounted for by the fact that their representatives had just debated the same question with Hope and Alma two weeks before, while the question was new to the Normals. scrub team consisting of W. P. Gee,

'15; C. N. Ponton, '15, and H. A. Hendershot, '14, put on a debate May twenty-second with Central State Normal on a question of compul ory arbitration of labor disputes. The debate was won by our boys.

The present year has been one of intense and su tained interest in both oratory and debate. In order to accommodate the growing number of men who wish to learn debating a brand new club, christened the Forum Club, made its appearance last November and takes its place beside the Webster and Lincoln Clubs. Very commendable work is being done under the direction of its first president, Emery C. Hulett, '15.

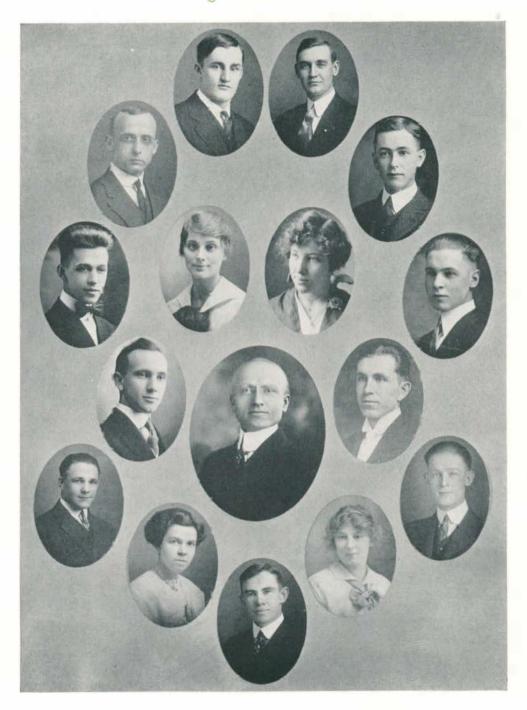

A triangular debate between Ferris Institute, Central State Normal School, and M. S. N. C. was scheduled February twenty-sixth on the question, "Resolved, that the United States should subsidize its merchant marine." On this occasion Rufus R. Humphrey, '15; Earl J. Oakes, Degree, and R. R. Bannen, '15, repre ented us at Big Rapids on the negative, while H. Ray Russell, Degree; Phillip Boyce, '16, and George C. Quinnell, '15, defended the affirmative at home. In all three debates the affirmative side won. It is possible that a dual debate may be scheduled this year with the Milwaukee State Normal in which there is now a great deal of interest.

In oratory our record has been much above the ordinary. In the Michigan Oratorical League contest at Alma, March fifth, our representative in the men's contest, Elwood D. Stanbery, '15, tied for fourth place with his oration, "A Voice from the Past," while our woman contestant, Eva R. Arent, '16, made second place, in a brilliant effort, with a peace oration, "The Sport of Kings." The greatest oratorical interest probably centered in the state peace contest held at Ann Arbor, March nineteenth. The Normal orator, Arthur A. Metcalf, was accompanied by a delegation of rooters one hundred strong who set the echoes of University Hall ringing with their songs and yells. Though seven colleges were represented, the contest resolved itself into a close race for oratorical honors between the Normal and the University. The latter won by but one point and both contestants were several points above their nearest competitors. To be beaten only by the University was again a decided victory. Mr. Metcalf with his oration, "A Positive Propaganda for Peace." was awarded second honor and a twenty-five dollar money testimonial.

All students representing their college in either regular oratory or debate are presented, at the close of the year, in a public meeting called for the purpose, with either bronze or gold medals for excellence in platform speaking.

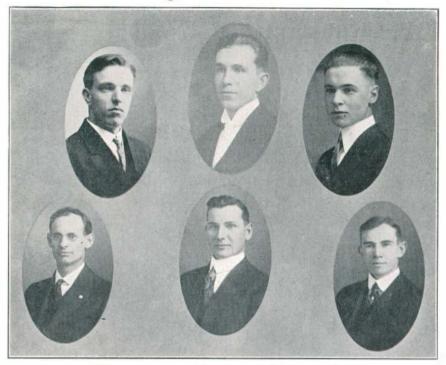

While too early to record other contests for the current year, it has thus far been a success, and with the enthusiasm and support of so large a number of loyal students, the future of public speaking activities in the Normal College is full of promise.

The Minerva Literary Society

HE year 1914-1915 has been of exceptional interest in the Minerva Literary Society, both in its literary and ocial activities. Among the latter was the informal reception given for the Portia and Laonian societies, and the faculty members of the English Department. The literary work has been the study of the "Short Story," and with the help of Miss Downing, Miss Collins, and Miss Gardner, the work has been both interesting and instructive.

THE NORMAL CHOIR

The Normal Choir

YELDOM has a community the good fortune to hear artistic ensemble singing from a choir whose work is purely voluntary. The NORMAL CHOIR under the masterly leadership of Mr. Frederick Alexander has attained a distinct recognition in this field. The Choir is composed of two hundred singers from the students of the Normal College, most of whom have had no previous training. Therefore the results, so quickly attained, in delicacy of nuance and varieties of style, are the highest possible tribute to the skill of the conductor.

A unique feature of the year's work is the Christmas concert. The entire program of the old and modern Christmas music, selected from a wide range of national literatures, is sung in German, French, Italian, Latin, and English, without accompaniment and without scores. The chorus sings with a spontaneity and freshness, and inspiration that is thrilling. So much has this concert interested and attracted people not only in Ypsilanti but also from Ann Arbor and Detroit (numerous patrons coming from both these cities), that last year in December, the Arts and Crafts Society in Detroit, composed of artists and musicians of distinction, invited Mr. Alexander and the College Choir to repeat in St. Paul's Cathedral. This was a distinct honor and a mark of appreciation of lovely ensemble singing. Another concert in May with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra completed the year's program.

Mr. Weston Gales, the brilliant young conductor of the new Detroit Symphony Orchestra, had this to say to the Detroit Press apropos of the Normal College Choir:

"I feel strongly that all persons either musical, artistic, or religious, regardless of sect or nationality, should avail themselves of an opportunity to listen to a performance which is characterized by the same simplicity, sincerity, enthusiasm, intelligence, and deep religious feeling as the Passion Play of Oberammergau and the Bach Festival at Bethlehem. The public of Detroit owes the Society of Arts and Crafts, who have made this concert possible, a debt of gratitude and can show it in no better way than by crowding the Cathedral to the door."

The Craftman Club

HE desire to create a tronger class spirit and a closer fraternal relationship among the specializing students of the Manual Training Department suggested and promoted the organization of The Craftman Club in the winter of 1912. It was hoped that the club would afford its members an opportunity to study the actual industrial requirements as related to the school, to keep in touch with other schools and to gain a broader knowledge of the field of education. With this in view reports have been given relating to the history and development of the different branches of Manual Training. The social side while not especially empha ized is encouraged and accepted as an important factor in all educational work.

Practical in its purpose, broad in its aim, with Efficiency as its watchword, the club faces the future confident of a widening field of usefulnes.

The Catholic Students' Club

N THE years past, the Catholic students attending the Michigan State Normal College and Cleary Business College have attempted to meet in a social way. About three years ago a permanent organization was established and today it is a flourishing club with a membership of one hundred and seventy-five.

The meetings are informal gatherings held twice a month in St. John's Club House. Be ides the regular business meetings, the members are privileged to enjoy short talks on vital and interesting subjects by men and women of standing who have a message worth while.

The Club is governed by a simple constitution and is maintained by moderate dues. The Club was established to promote social intercourse, social betterment, and a deeper appreciation of responsibilities and possibilities.

The Chemistry Club

THE Chemistry Club was organized January 18, 1910, under the direction of Professor Peet and was the first of the departmental clubs of the college to be organized. The first meeting was held in the chemistry lecture room with Professor Peet acting as temporary chairman. C. E. Davis was chosen president and the club started its first year with twenty-eight members.

The purpose of the club is to cultivate a broader interest in chemi try than can be brought out in the class room. Any student who has had one year of chemistry is eligible to membership. Topics of interest to the industrial and technical chemist are reported on and discussed as well as those of importance from the teaching standpoint. Meetings are held once a month in the lecture room and are well attended and enjoyed.

Each year during the spring term our patron, Professor Peet, plan a trip to some of the interesting industrial establishments of Detroit, and it is always a jolly crowd that boards the early car and an exceptionally satisfied crowd that comes back at night. The thing that makes the trip so altogether enjoyable is its complete organization. Professor Peet always has everything planned even to the minutest detail, such as the Newcomb-Endicott dinner. This, together with the courtesy and kindness of the managements of the various establishments visited, makes it difficult for one not to enjoy oneself.

FERRIS INSTITUTE CLUB

Ferris Institute Club

MONG Ypsilanti's pleasant features last autumn, by no means least was the frequent sight of former F. I. friends and classmates. On October 17th about two score met at Starkweather Hall to organize a Ferris Institute Club, with the avowed purpose of sustaining in our new surroundings the Ferris Institute spirit of good fellowship, high ideals, and devotion to duty. To aid in this, frequent meetings were held throughout the year, adding much to our pleasure. Professor and Mrs. Elliott and Miss Matteson kindly acted as patrons.

From time to time interesting social events have added to the enjoyment of the members. November 21st, a reception was tendered the Ann Arbor Club which proved one of the most pleasant events of the year. Many old friendships were revived, as well as new ones formed. A dinner was given, November 28th, in honor of Mr. Masselink. All welcomed the opportunity to meet our good friend, and a delightful time ensued. On Tuesday evening preceding Christmas, Professor and Mrs. Elliott entertained the members who remained through vacation, giving them at least one bright spot in the two weeks. Feb. 19th, we joined in the annual F. I. banquet at Ann Arbor. A delicious repast, an excellent program, and above all the kindly presence of Mr. Masselink made it an evening long to be remembered.

A high standard of scholarship has been maintained and honor won in various lines, notably in the "between clubs" debating contest where both first and second places were won by our members.

This year has brought us many cherished memories. May the future be as bright for those who follow the well blazed trail from "The Old F. I." to M. S. N. C.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

Hurom

TRAMING

President, Ralph Von Thurm Secretary, Lucy N. Retting Chairman, Program Committee, Cornelia Newman Chairman, Social Committee, Gertrude Cherry

HEN a group of about sixty people gathered in a class room of the Normal building one evening last ovember, they little knew of the good times in store for them. But that night was organized the Physical Education Club, whose membership comprises the students who are specializing in Physical Education. Its purpose is to further the interest in physical training, and to create a closer fraternal spirit among its members. The meetings have been of a varied character, purely instructive, purely social, and a happy mixture of both. Those of educational trend have afforded the members an opportunity to acquire a broader knowledge of the field of physical education. One of the most enjoyed of this class of programs was furnished by Miss Perrine of Detroit. It is expected many other speakers especially qualified to interest along athletic lines will follow.

The programs at the social meetings have included games, dancing, singing, illustrated talks and an occasional feast. The last meeting before this writing was held at Professor Bowen's home, and was typical of the happy family spirit that spread over this fun-loving group wherever it may chance to be

Perhaps the one person most responsible for the joyousness of this happy family is Mrs. Burton; for she it is who sings to them when they wish to be sung to, talks to them when they wish to be talked to, finds them a dancing floor when they wish to dance, obtains the almost unobtainable permission when they wish to stage a show—in short, who smooths the path to all the desires of her fellow members.

Inside the larger circle of the Physical Education Club is a smaller circle, the Physical Education Society of Ypsilanti. This is a branch of the National Society; and while at present there are only a comparatively few members, it shows promise of becoming as lively and as flourishing as its fellow organization.

Each year since that of 1912, has seen a Physical Education Club, but none has evinced the unusual enthusiasm of this one, nor has offered its members the opportunity to carry away with them in June, memories of so many happy evenings.

The Girls' Annual Meet of 1915

WELVE time now has the Gymnasium been the scene of the Annual Meet of the Junior and Senior girls. Twelve times have the classes vied with each other for honors. Twelve times have the old walls vibrated with the songs and cheers of the contestants and their friends. One wonders, if the wizard Edi on is ever able to bring from brick walls and rafters the sounds which have passed into and through them, what the dear old Gym. will tell down through the ages.

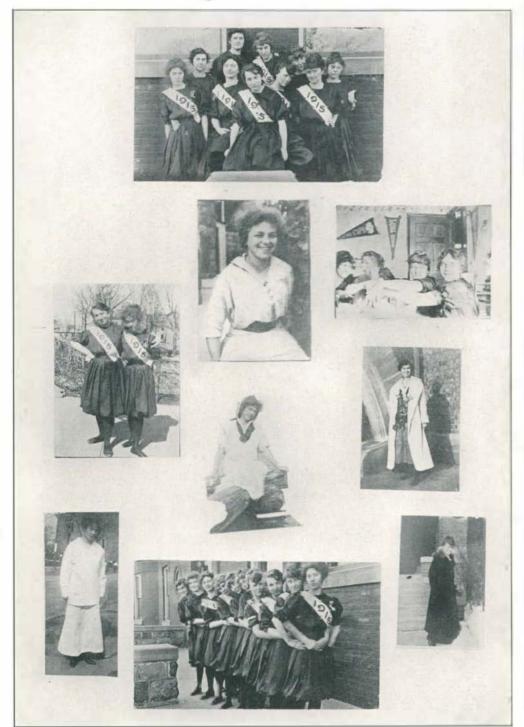

It is good to think that when a thing is once done and pronounced "the best ever," that its repetition may again merit the same commendation. The Indoor Meet of 1913-14 had been so good it seemed impossible to better it; yet when the last whistle had blown for the year 1914-15, the retrospective view saw that it had had great merit and had surpassed again its predecessors. There was the same kindly spirit, but it passed the bounds of mere tolerance into the realm of genuine and kindly interest in the work of the opponents.

The closeness of the contests throughout was the most marked in Meet history and only a little loss for the Seniors and a little gain for the Juniors might have made the Junior hosts victorious. With the knowledge all along that this closeness was possible the zeal grew to such proportions that many sought to take up a day and night program under the water or poised on one toe on the balance beams.

For another year now the words "Indoor Meet" will not be heard on the campus, but resting quietly in a certain drawer in a certain desk are those words for a heading, and below them many notes and comments which put into execution will let the Meet of 1915-16 stand as a fitting successor to the one which has called forth this eulogy.

The Muses, Banished

"I'm in the slough of despond."

"What's the calamity this time?" inquired Priscilla from the depths of her trunk where she was burrowing for a lately remembered collar.

"Psych. exam. tomorrow, and there's that essay that has to be handed in before noon."

"Thought you were going to write that over the week-end," remarked

Priscilla.

"Well, I did intend to but I didn't have time. There was that party Friday night, and Saturday I went down town, and Saturday night to the Meet. Well, I'll just have to make up for lost time tonight," groaned Be's as she threw her coat on the nearest chair.

"Now, here I apply myself to the cultivation of my intellect! Vanish, ye frivolities of the world! Appear, ye spirits of the Muse! Priscilla, lock the door; your humble servant would study and some worldly creature might profane the intellectual sanctuary."

Priscilla, having secured the desired collar, proceeded to lock the door.

"Will you be so accommodating as to invoke some information for me from your Muses?" begged Priscilla. "I've got to find out how high the water tower is for Teachers' Geography tomorrow, and I haven't a ghost of an idea whether it's fifty feet or five hundred feet.'

"Neither have my Muses. Do hush, Priscilla! I must study," and Bess dug into a heap of books, fished out a blue-book, and with a perplexed expression on her usually carefree face began to write. Intermittent periods of scratching from a noisy pen alternated with silence as Bess frowned, squinted her eyes thoughtfully with a far-away look, and tapped the floor with a patent-leathered foot.

"Oh, Pris.! Helen wanted me to ask you if she might borrow your gym. suit for a party the girls are going to have. She asked me two or three days ago, and I forgot it until just now. Did you see her Aurora pictures?

"Were they so good, or so bad, or what?"

"They were just fine, but dear me! I mustn't visit; I must study."

Silence reigned for several minutes, and the studious Priscilla now absorbed in her history was again interrupted.

"Have you heard whether the Students' Council has decided anything definite about caps and gowns about commencement? I hope they decide to have them. Wouldn't it look picturesque for us all to march up for our diplomas in different colored caps and gowns according to the course we finish?"

"Well, I don't think you'll need any cap and gown. You'll be watching the picturesque performance from the audience if you don't apply yourself to that essay."

"Heaven helps him who helps himself," chanted Bess. "As I remarked before, I think I must study," and for some minutes nothing was heard in the room but the hurrying pen of the student.

Presently there came a tingling sound, a metallic click, and an inquiring voice from below.

"Is Miss Richmond in? Long Distance is calling."

The Muses fled precipitantly back into the somber recesses from which they had been so recently called, and both girls rushed down stairs.—P. Alton.

THE LIFE OF A PLEDGE

Deep in the heart of every one, Deep in the heart of you, A single rose of friendship grows, Kissed by a sacred dew.

Into the lives of every one, Into the life of you. With fragrance gleams some noble dreams Of all you hope to do.

These little pins we proudly wear Are symbols of the rose.
A pledge's life but illustrates
The flower as it grows.

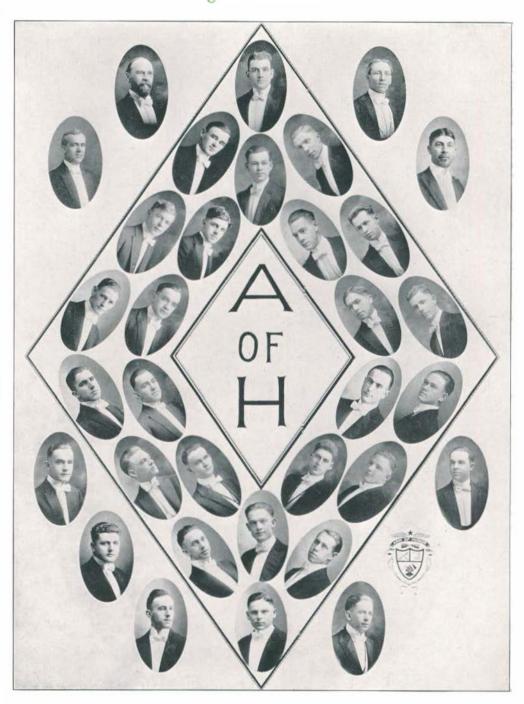

For as the rosebud braves the storms That shake its fragile stem, So does the pledge brave duties too, That strengthen in the end.

Time slips away; the pledge's life— It passes all too soon. At last we find the fair rosebud At the morning of full bloom.

Friendship! Oh, wondrous gift of God. The holiest fragrance heaven knows, With arms outstretched to gather it We wait—the full bloom of the rose.

"PROSPERING DAYS IN THE AURORA OFFICE"

Extracts from the Campus Dictionary

Acronaut: A person who goes up in order to come down.

Syn.—Our cheer master

Adicu: A prayer of thanksgiving uttered at parting; much used by Seniors after Assembly.

Aborigine: 1. A natural, unaffected person, such as either of the Straubs.

. One who hates civilization and the "Ladies Hum Journal."

Syn.—Hendershot

Anarchist: A mouther of sublime inanities. Syn.—Metcalf

Admission: To go into a place where one is not wanted.

Earnest Rynearson tried this at Senior girls' assembly one day.

Art: A matter of hair-cut and neckties. Syn.—W. Weinkauf

Booty: Property in a transitional stage. Syn.—Rubbers, umbrellas and muffs

Business: A method of reducing a landlady to her lowest terms.

Dignity: A state of spiritual, mental, or emotional starchines that precedes a bluff. (Juniors may apply to Seniors for the formula.)

Editor: A person employed on the staff of a paper whose butiness it is to separate the wheat from the chaff and to see that the chaff i printed.

Syn.-Hitchcock

Executive: A man who can make quick decisions and is sometimes right.

Syn.-Morrison

Gaiety: An effervescence of spirits produced by the receipt of money from home.

Genius: A capacity for evading hard work. Syn.—Humphrey

Has-Been: Any man who thinks he has arrived.

If: A tight rope which stretches from But to But.

Syn.-S. Thiel

Lovers: Unconscious comedians. (Attend their entertainments in the corridors during the winter, and on the Huron during the spring.)

Millenium: A mythical period when everyone will pay his debts and begin tomorrow on renewed credit. (The Rowima and Zwergel's have ceased to expect it.)

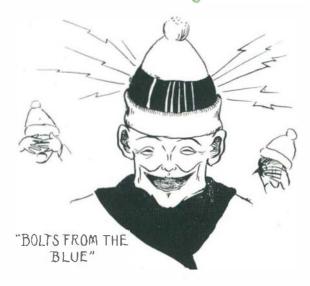

Orator: One who produces the lullaby of the intellect.

Syn.—Burke at Class Meetings

Yours: Anything which up to the present time the bunch has not been able to get away from you.

(Do not count your books, as you will have to sell those in order to get home.)

Himom

OVERHEARD AT CLASSIFICATION: "I am always too sleepy to do anything right after dinner, so I might just as well take a one o'clock class as not."

JUNIOR: "Yes, that is the new auditorium. It's named Pearce after my arithmetic teacher."

Mr. Elliott: "What is sleep?"
Mr. Lamb: "Sleep is a normal condition er...."

Mr. Elliot: "Yes, I have noticed many instances of it around the Normal."

The "mo t unkindest cut of all" for the Juniors is the memory of how they had the orchestra play. "This is the End of a Perfect Day," in their last event of the meet, but then we can hardly blame them.

Professor Ford, discussing a recitation just finished, said: "The Devil is black, isn't he?"

Miss S.: "He's red sometimes."
PROFESSOR FORD: "I defer to your superior knowledge, Miss S.—I have never seen him."

AN INTELLIGENT DOG

Two Juniors were auntering up Cross Street one night in joyous mood. A curly white dog bounded out of the darkness to bark at them. They barked back, whereupon a door was opened and a voice called, "Come on in, Fido. You know more than they do anyway."

Professor Lott: "Your answer is fully as clear as mud."

LANGTON: "That covers the ground thoroughly, doesn't it?"

Senior (Meeting a friend in the hall): "What's your hurry?"

JUNIOR: "I have a reference with Miss Collins in ten minutes."

A JUNIOR LYRIC

The Juniors are some songsters! Take for instance their parody on Tipperary. How they sang it at the Girls' Meet!

It's a sad time for the Seniors;
It is hard luck we know;
But we'll tell you just the reason.
They're a little bit too slow
To keep the pep up with the Juniors.
Oh you Juniors, come on with the fight!
For we'll take a trib to Tibberary

For we'll take a trip to Tipperary With a victory tonight.

Sequel sung by Seniors after the meet:

It's a glad time for the Seniors:
It is good luck we know;
And we'll tell you just the reason,
Juniors were a little bit slow.
Oh you Juniors! "Classy" Juniors!
For your square fight we cheer:
And you'll take your trip to Tipperary
With a victory—next year.

TRAGEDY IN ONE ACT

Place—Starkweather Hall.

TIME—A rainy night in February.

PRELIMINARY ACTION — Violent pounding at door, which was opened by Miss Knapp. Enter the hero, dripping wet and showing signs of haste. "Is this diss

"No, it is not."

"Why, aren't you Miss —

I'm Mr. from Ann Arbor."

"Indeed not!"

"Why, isn't this the President of the V

"Yes, I'm the President of the Y. W."

"And isn't this the President's House?"

"No, this is Starkweather Hall."

Exit—Much embarrassed hero.

EPILOGUE — The next day the story found its way to Prexy's ear and the mystery was explained. The hero was intending to call on the maid at the President's home.

Will not someone publish an M. S. N. C. guide for the strangers in our midst?

OUR HERO

Kishigo stood on the football field For just about a minute; And then they called the ambulance And put his fragments in it.

They took him to the hospital
And sewed him up with care,
But when the game was played next day,
Behold! Kishigo was there.

Dr. Ransom (in Health Inspection Class): "Name some of the causes of deafness."

 $\ensuremath{\mathsf{MR}}.$   $\ensuremath{\mathsf{SMELZER}}:$  "Foreign objects in the ear."

Dr. Ransom: "Give an illustration of a foreign object."

Mr. SMELZER: "A bean."

PREXY (in Senior Assembly): "Those that are standing may go. The rest may be seated."

Miss Clark: "How dare you swear before me?"

PEARL: "I beg your pardon! How did I know you wanted to swear first?"

The bluebooks had just been returned in Physics class. One Senior's was graded seventy per cent.!

He remarked, "Well I copied most of that from the text, and if it' worth only seventy per cent.. I wish Strong would write a text of his own."

The Freshmen in an algebra class seemed to be highly amused at something. Soon the student detective discovered a paper circulating in their midst, on which was written:

Freshmen tall! Freshmen small! Freshmen very lean!

Some are fat, but worse than that, The most of them are green!

Signed,
The Sophomores.

Mr. Elliott: "Say, do you know I was taken for Roosevelt once?"

was taken for Roosevelt once?"

MR. McKay: "That's nothing. A man thought I was Wilson"

man thought I was Wilson."

Mr. Harvey: "Piffle! Once a fellow stepped up to me and said. 'Holy Moses! Is that you?'"

INQUISITIVE JUNIOR: "What makes your hair so red?"

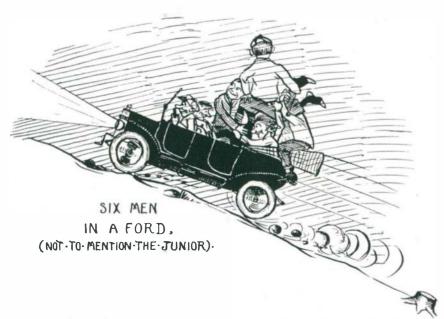

Miss Albaugh: "It's so wiry that every time I wash it. it rusts."

PROFESSOR WILBER: "When was the last Revival of Learning?"

CLASS, IN CONCERT: "Before the last exam."

Home is naught without a mother, Church is dull without a preacher, Life is sad without a lover,

But class is joy without a teacher.

LESSONS IN FUTILITY

We've learned quite a bit in the last few vears.

Some things with the loss of a few good tears,

From teachers, from books, from "lab." and from class,

And now they say we have credits to pass.

Other things we found out, as the days passed by

And the Normal school world did unfold to our eye.

Very early we learned that on Wednesday at two

In their seats at Assembly, the Juniors were due.

We Senior maids vainly expected to see, "Girls are excused from Assembly at three," Writ bold on the bulletin board in the hall. But with crochet hooks and shuttles we went, after all.

Next the problem arose, "Will they take roll today?"

How to solve it successfully only C. P. can

If perchance we should miss, our excuse must present,

"The Doctor," "The Denti t," and others we've sent.

Another ordeal that was hard to evade Was how to teach music some day in our grade,

Armed with pitchpipe and score-book we mounted each step
And conquered the "Elements" with great show of "pep!"

But when we'd passed safely the "Do-misol-do,

A stiff course in Penmanship was the next blow.

They say that now each his own writing can read.

If true, 'twas not, after all, such a bad deed.

Petition! Petition! The word we've all heard.

"Have you signed the petition?" Oh, no. it's absurd,

For here in the Normal "The Rules" reign

Any kind of petition is useles, we deem.

The last one we signed was for "ten-thirty" rule,

Oh no! Not for girls when enrolled in this school.

At last we have learned it is futile to plead. If '16 succeed they'll be lucky indeed!

IN THE LIBRARY

Co-ED: "I'd like Bryant's Translation of the Odyssey."

STUDENT ASSISTANT (after a prolonged searching): "We have the Odyssey by Homer, but none by Bryant."

HARD TO BELIEVE

WORRIED JUNIOR: "What's the matter with Professor Pearce? Do you think he is worrying about his appendix?"

Wise Senior: "Not he! The memory of the bet he made on that 'Kazoo' game is what worries him."

Mr. MEAD (patting his smooth lip): "Yes, I'm trying to raise a mustache, and I wonder what color it will be when it comes out."

MISS Scott: "Gray, I should think, according to the rate it is growing."

L. KNAPP: "Where do you usually worship, Mr. Morrison?"

H. Morrison: "Sunday morning I go to the Methodist Church, but Sunday evening I go almost any place.'

WOULD-BE PROFESSORS

COTANCH: "I'm head of the Geography Department in the Training School these

PEARL: "Oh you haven't anything over me, Cotanch! I'm head of the Hot Air Department in the 'Fresh Air School.'"

A DELICATE ANIMAL

One of those wet and slippery mornings in February, Professor Ford gave a blue book. Later when asked to explain why he "fell down," Mr. Bedell said, "Well, it was so slippery that I couldn't bring my

MISS CANE: "I know, but I can't express myself.

PROFESSOR HOYT: "Don't try to express yourself. There's plenty of time for you to come by freight!"

Mr. Bowen (in School Hygiene): "If Open Air Schools are so good for sick children, why wouldn't they be good for well children, too?"

R. Scovill: "Some people have such frail dispositions that they'd catch cold."

Miss Walton (in library lecture): "How many of you girls played with dolls when you were young?"
CLEVERINGA: "I did."

APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY

Morrison thinks he has the "best ever" illustration of imitation. In answer to a question he asked his geography class on an 'exam," a seventh grade boy wrote this reply:
"I don't understand the question. See me."

TRATE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN (disturbed by a student book-agent): "You book agents make me so angry with your confounded nerve and impudence that I cannot find words to express my indignation.

NORMALITE (overflowing with enthusiasm): "Then I am a present help in trouble! I have here the very thing you need a dictionary of the English language, containing all the newest words and latest slang phrases known. It was written by a Normal professor who has a marvelous vocabulary himself. Buy one and you never will be at a loss to express yourself."

A SLIGHT DIFFERENCE

AT M. A. C.—"Lights out at ten." AT M. S. N. C.—"Light out at ten."

The winter quarter seems to have been a very serious one, for but one item found its way to the joke box. You are now about to share it with us, and we hope the point has not been dulled by waiting so long for publication.

"After the flood Noah bequeathed the ark to Ypsilanti for a Normal College!'

Time to laugh!

ANTIQUITIES

Mr. Steimle: "A man in Philadelphia has Benjamin Franklin's watch." Mr. Pearce: "That's nothing! I know a man who has Adam's apple.

BEWARE!

Absence makes the marks grow rounder.

GOOD TIMES AT THE NORMAL

"WE WANT MONEY"

"L'ENVOI"

When the ink is all dried and faded, and the critic has gone away, We shall rest, and faith, we shall need it—sit down for a month or two, Till the master of some good high school shall set us to work anew. And those who teach well shall be happy; they shall sit in the honored chair; They shall teach in some prosperous high school, and find real contentment there; They shall teach years in one situation and never be tired at all. And only the children shall praise us, and only the children shall blame; And no one shall work for "credit," and no one shall fail in shame; But each for the joy of working, and each, in her separate star, Shall teach the things as she wants to, for the superintendent there.

M. L. C.
