DEDICATION

TO WEBSTER H. PEARCE, IN APPRECIATION OF HIS SINCERE INTEREST IN SCHOOL ACTIVITIES, HIS UPRIGHTNESS OF CHARACTER, AND HIS CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP, WE DEDICATE THE AURORA OF 1916

Webster H. Pearce, A.M.

Editors' Foreword

BEHOLD! the Aurora of 1916! Long have we labored and patiently toiled through the 'wee small hours' that you might be given this memoir of your college days. It is impossible to put into this book all of the thoughts and feelings that we has for our College, but if you find embodic within its pages those phases of College life that have appealed most to you, then we have accomplished our purpose.

To you we leave the Aurora with this parting injunction, "Open its pages with-out knocking and close them in the same way."

The School Teachers' Creed

BELIEVE in boys and girls, the men I and women of a great tomorrow: that whatsoever the boy soweth the man shall reap. I believe in the curse of ignorance. in the efficacy of schools, in the dignity of teaching, and in the joy of serving others. I believe in wisdom as revealed in human live as well as in the pages of a printed book; in lessons taught, not so much by precept as by example: in ability to work with the hands as well as to think with the head; in everything that makes life large and lovely. I believe in beauty in the school room, in the home, in daily life, and in out of doors. I believe in laughter, in love, in faith, in all ideals and distant hopes that lure us on. I believe that every hour of every day we receive a just reward for all we are and all we do. I believe in the present and its opportunities, in the future and its promises, and in the divine joy of living. Amen.

EDWIN OSGOOD GROVER.

Greetings from the Seniors

Here's Greetings to you, Faculty!

But for your kindly thought,

Our strivings here would have, we fear,

Come to naught.

And here's to you, Oh, Junior Class!

Dim Future bravely gleams,

May Achievement bright, her golden light

Shed o'er your dreams.

Greetings to you, our school friends all!

May Aurora's pages renew,

The friendships made and hours you played.

Success to you!

College Hall

THE original main building of the college, erected in 1852, was destroyed by fire in 1859 and immediately rebuilt. With several additions this is now the college hall. Through its efficient faculty and scores of alumni, who are doing competent work in almost every state in the Union, the Michigan State Normal College has gained a nationwide reputation. In the preparation of its teachers the institution stands for three essential: a high grade of scholarship: the study of education as a science; and practice in teaching under expert supervision and criticism.

Starkweather Hall

STARKWEATHER Hall is the center of the religious life of the college; it is here that the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian Associations hold sway. Both Associations have been doing strong work among the students and have contributed much toward the development of the college.

President's Home

POR a number of years this was the private residence of Dr. L. H. Jone; but it was purchased by the state in 1915 for the home of the college president. Within the next year this ite will be used for the new library of the college.

Training School

THE Michigan State Normal Training School was built in 1896. Previous to this time, the Training department was located in the main building of the college. In 1910 an addition was built better to accommodate the first grade, the Kindergarten, Manual Training, and the Household Arts department. Under the able direction of Superintendent Roberts and a very efficient corps of Training teachers, this department of our college has gained an enviable reputation.

Gymnasium

Burton, the Phy ical Training department has become one of the large t in the college and is keenly appreciated by every tudent. The gymnasium is the center of many college activities, such as basketball game and informal parties. Here is staged one of the most anticipated events of the year, the Junior-Senior Girls' Meet. In 1915 a new men's department was added, and exten ive improvement were made in the building until now it is among the best equipped gymnasia in the state.

Science Building

THE Science Hall is a thoroughly modern structure built in 1903. It has pacious and well equipped classrooms and laboratories for the departments of biology, chemistry, and physics.

Campus Scene

" PON the campus we love to roam In dear old Yp i, our college home."

Woodruff School

ALTHOUGH one of the city ward schools, two of the grades of the Woodruff School are considered in our Training department and accommodate a number of Normal student teachers. This thoroughly modern school building was erected in 1901.

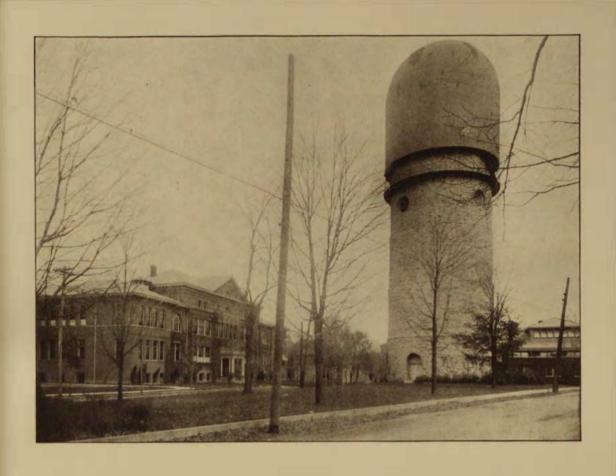

River Scene

THE Huron River will always hold a large place in the heart of our tudent. With the first breath of spring comes the call of the Huron with its gaily painted canoes and attractive camping pots, and until late Fall "going up the river" is a pastime that appeals to all alike.

Health Cottage

EALTH Cottage, commonly known as the College Hospital, is in charge of the trained nurse, Miss Emma Cross. The students who are ill and need special care are always taken to Health Cottage. Except in cases of protracted illness or when additional nur es are necessary, no hospital fees are charged the students.

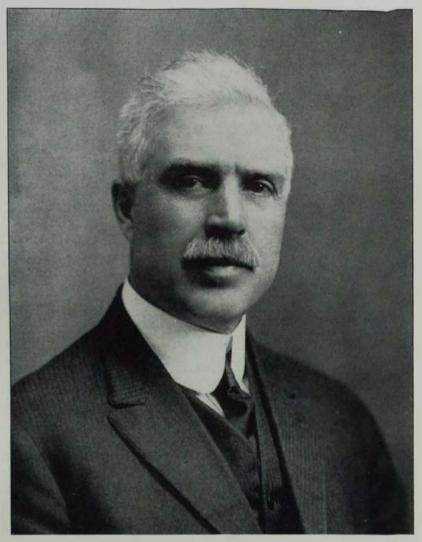

Training School and Tower

THIS scene i familiar to both college students and resident of the city. Pressure to force the water upply to all parts of the city i furnished by this tower.

PRESIDENT CHARLES MCKENNY

"A poet is born, not made," says the proverb. Equally is it true that a college president is born, not made. For the qualities of successful leadership are inborn as truly as poetic genius. Besides integrity of character and high ideals of life, virtues essential to true success in any calling, the president of a college must have other qualities quite as important. He must possess a powerful and magnetic personality to win the loyalty and devotion of the students. His heart must be kindly and sympathetic, inviting the confidence of the young. Further, he should be broadly educated, acquainted with the best in the past and thereby qualified to plan the best for the future. And last, he must be a man of vision, always following the gleam of that ever greater college that is to be.

Charles McKenny is a president, born not made. And of the qualities mentioned above, perhaps the last is most conspicuous in him. He is dreaming dreams of the future greatness of this college, and he is making his dreams come true.

WORK a farm and teach school to make a living," is what Dr. Harvey might answer upon inquiry as to his occupation. He is one of the hardest workers on the faculty; and as a leader in educational work, and as head of the department of Pedagogy, he is a true exponent of the finer arts of his profession. He makes his teaching fit the practical needs of the modern teacher as is evidenced by the expressions of appreciation for his work by those who are out in the field. His deep, sympathetic interest in their welfare has inspired many students to press forward with added zeal toward the mark of their ambition. Not only is he admired by every Normal student, but the people of Ypsilanti showed their appreciation this Spring of his active interest in civic welfare, by choosing him as a nominee for the mayorship of the city.

> NATHAN A. HARVEY, Ph.D. Department of Pedagogy

NE of the best known and best loved men upon the campus i Mr. Laird, a man who is always nobly striving to elevate the social, intellectual, and moral side of student life. Those who have met him in the class room and have felt the personal touch that he gives to his work there, and those who have profited by a more intimate acquaintance all appreciate Mr. Laird as a man strong in personality, rich in character, and a true friend of all.

Samuel B. Laird, A.M. Department of Psychology

MRS. FRENCH stands for the truest, most genuine and sincere ideals of womanhood, inspiring the girls with whom she comes in contact with ideals which are upheld with reverence and esteem wherever they may go. Her pleasant smile and cherry words are always ready at the moment a girl most needs encouragement.

MARTHA H. FRENCH Department of Domestic Art

WITH her charm and sympathy of manner, Miss Blackman has found a secure place in the hearts of the Domestic Science students. Her hearty smile is a source of inspiration to the girls in her department, and the quiet, dignified way in which she conducts her work wins for her the heartfelt praise of all who know her.

EDITH BLACKMAN, B.S.

Department of Domestic Science

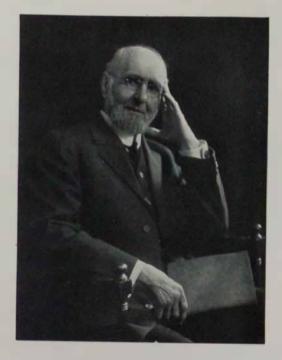

ROFESSOR Mark Jefferson has been connected with the Normal since 1901, and during that time has made a place for himself in the hearts of his associates and the students who have had the opportunity of working under his direction. A scholar in every sense of the word, upholding always the highest ideals, he leads the way for others to follow. He has recently been elected President of the American Geographical Society, is also a contributing editor of the Journal of School Geography, and was formerly President of the Michigan Academy of Science, These positions show in what esteem Mr. Jefferson is held by the scholars of the country.

Mark Jefferson, A.M.

Department of Geography

TO HIM much has been given; to great intellectual power has been added a depth and richness of experience born of decades of carnest labor as a teacher; to a sympathetic understanding of student nature has been added rare nobility of character and kindly helpfulness of spirit. And of himself much does he give. Dr. Strong's students may well say, "I am indeed rich, for he is my friend."

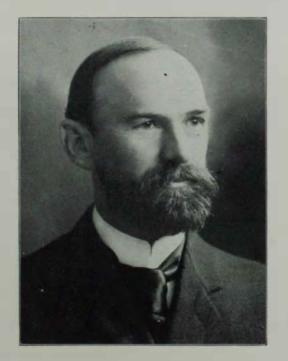

Edwin A. Strong, A.M.

Department of Physical Sciences

In HER wise judgment and loving consideration of their problems, the students have in Miss Adams a rare friend. To know her means to have higher ideals of womanhood and a broader, more beautiful concept of the profession of teaching. The real test of character is the love and respect one inspires in little children. Miss Adams, surrounded by a group of eager-eyed children, is a picture long to be remembered. It makes her pre-eminent as a friend of childhood.

Edith Adams, M.Pd. Supervisor of Kindergarten

NORE scholarly man can be found upon the campus than Dr. D'Ooge. Among the students who come to know him intimately, he arouses a deep respect for his scholarship, an admiration for true character, and a love for the genial, friendly manner that dominates his every activity. Dr. D'Ooge has become well known through the publication of a number of text books, and is now recognized as an authority in ancient languages.

BENJAMIN L. D'OOGE, A.M., Ph.D. Department of Ancient Languages

I N 1902 Mr. Steimle graduated from the Normal College, and after teaching for three years returned to assist in the department of mathematics. He was elected to the position of Secretary-Registrar in 1909, and since then has filled it most successfully. The organization and efficiency that characterize our general office give evidence of the keen business and administrative abilities of the head of the office force.

CLEMENS B. STEIMLE, A.B. Secretary-Registrar

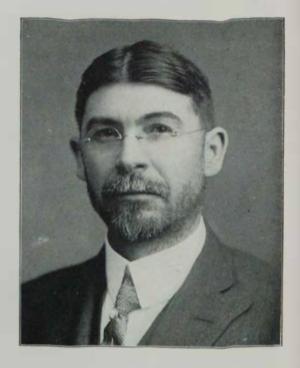

SYMPATHY and tact in dealing with his students as human individuals, along with his absolute subject mastery are the screets of the unobtrusive effectiveness of this "quiet man of the campu."

J. Stuart Lathers, A.B.

Department of Reading and Oratory

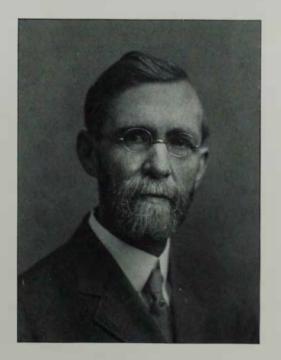

MODERN language students find in Dr. Ford a genial friend, a ready adviser, and a scholarly instructor. A touch of his keen humor lightens the most difficult task and makes his classes eagerly anticipated by his students. Extensive travel, broad reading, and a fine command of the English language give to Dr. Ford a vivid power of description that makes him not only an admirable teacher but also a delightful conversationalist.

R. Clyde Ford, Ph.D.

Department of Modern

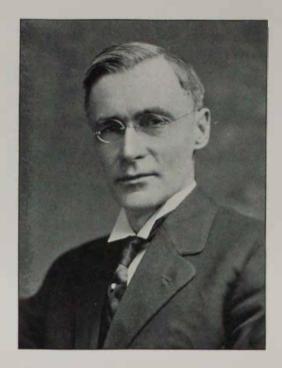

Languages

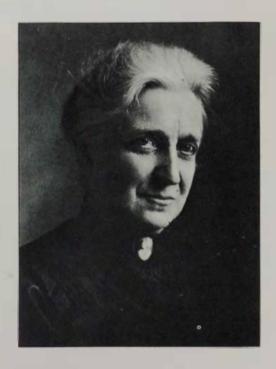

ALL those who have had work with Professor Barbour are keenly missing the inspiration and enthusiasm which he imparts to his classes. His glowing personality, fine sympathy, and loyalty to every interest of the English student has given to him the highest appreciation and love of hundreds of young men and women.

FLORUS A. BARBOUR, A.M. Department of English

It is the good fortune of the majority of the students of this Normal College to come under the influence of Dr. Charles O. Hoyt. Through his kill students are led to a broader appreciation of the personalities and philosophies of the great educators. But "After all lives of men are greater than books," and it is our privilege to come into contact with the life of this brilliant man whose ideals may be expressed in the dying words of Horace Mann, "Duty-Humanity-God."

CHARLES O. HOVT, Ph. D. Department of Philosophy and Education

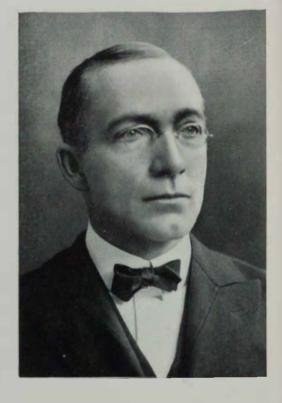

Walton, there has been a constant growth and improvement in the various departments of the library. The systematic arrangement of all books and periodicals which she has effected there makes it an easy talk to gather material on any definite subject. In looking forward to our new library, we see for it broader facilities and greater efficiency under the skillful management of Miss Walton.

Genevieve M. Walton Librarian

VICTORY really is not won unless the team gaining the larger number of points has played fairly and squarely throughout the game. Nor is the proper athletic spirit inherent in all young men. Professor Bowen is here to see that our teams win when they pile up the larger score, to see that they learn to be good losers without getting the habit. Every one who knows him at all is impressed with his broad knowledge of the human body and its vital forces, his untiring energy, and his honesty and love of right action. Over and above all this is his keen sense of humor the secret of Eternal Youth, For while the heart is young, one cannot grow old.

ALL meets, exhibitions, and tournaments which are staged at the gymnasium or given by the specializing girls give evidence of Mrs. Burton's ability to plan and manage such events. This remarkable power of organization makes things move, sweeps things along, and develops all possibilities and probabilities into realities. When the occasion arises, Mrs. Burton marshals her forces, lays out the tasks for each worker, and soon the results accomplished testify to Mrs. Burton's faculty as "manager."

FANNIE MEEVER BURTON M.Pd. Professor of Physical Education

In MISS FOSTER the students of music find a teacher who e untiring energy and helpfulness, combined with impartiality and justice in her dealings with students and associates, demand from them the greatest respect and appreciation. Mss Foster has a broad knowledge of her work and imparts it to her students with great interest and patience, inspiring them to ends which they might never have attained without her.

CLYDE E. FOSTER Supervisor of Music, Training Department

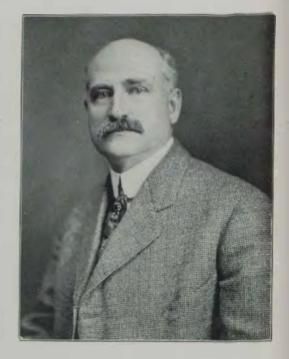

THROUGH Professor Alexander's mitiring efforts the conservatory department has been broadened and enriched. Each day he brings to his students some fresh inspiration, and his teaching carries with it a spontaneity that clearly displays his original and artistic tendencies. He has won for himself an enviable reputation in choir directing, in which work he demonstrates the fullness of his art.

Frederick Alexander, A.B.

Director of Conservatory of Music

THROLGH the informal lectures which Mr. Roberts gives to those who are teaching in the Training School, every graduate of the College comes to know him. The personal touch that he gives to these talks makes us realize that he considers himself a friend and helper of unall. Mr. Roberts is in trum ntal in securing for the Training School one of the most efficient groups of critic teachers of which this country can boast.

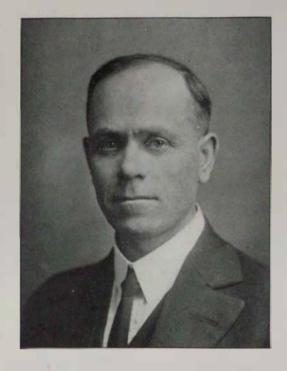

Dimon H. Roberts, A.M.
Superintendent of
Training School

STUDENTS of the mathematics department are grateful for the opportunity of working under such an able mathematician as Mr. Lyman. Before we came to College, we knew him through his text books, which are widely used in a number of states; and later, when we came into personal touch with him, our respect was kindled into admiration. The merry twinkle of his eyes and the genial smile that lurks behind the firmly set lips make Mr. Lyman one of the friends whom we shall remember.

FLMER A. LYMAN, A.M. Department of Mathematics

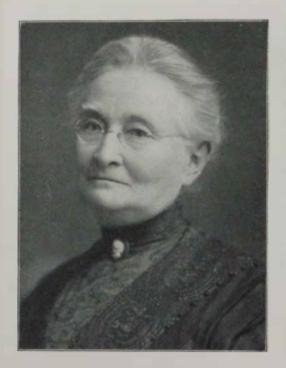

PAITHFULNESS has been said to be one of the most precious virtues a person can possess. The person who has taken a course in penmanship well knows that in Mr. Walker may be found the very essence of this virtue. He love his subject, and for this reason he unconsciously arouses in his students the desire to master the art of writing. Honor and tribute belong to one who, like Mr. Walker, toils from early morning until late night because he feels the importance of his duties.

LLOYD WALKER, A.B.

Instructor in

Penmanship

THOUSANDS of men and women over the state have come into touch with Miss King and have felt the influence of her logical mind; almost countless individuals value her as one of the most beneficent influences in their lives. Her keen reasoning power and the wonderful scope of her memory command at once a sincere respect and admiration. She is an untiring student and a gifted teacher with a high sense of her vocation and of the educator's work. In creating ideals and in giving form, substance, and spirit to the life yet to be, Miss King stands preeminent.

Julia Anne King, A.M., M.Pd. Professor Emeritus of History and Social Sciences

"To him who in the love of nature holds communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language."

In PROFESSOR SHERZER we find a true nature lover, to whom the world is a never ceasing source of wonder and speculation. He not only appreciates nature himself, but leads others to do the same. We who have enjoyed one of Professor Sherzer's nature study courses feel that we have through his teaching, gained a glimpse of that broader world which lies beyond the understanding of the casual observer.

W. H. Sherzer, M.S., Ph.D.

THE charm of Miss Goodison's personality blends itself with her artistic talent in making her work with the art students highly appreciated. Study under famous artists and a growing understanding of wonderful masterpieces have combined to strengthen her own natural ability. We understand Miss Goodison through her art, and we learn to appreciate the art of the masters through her interpretation.

S OME one has said that the best way to have a friend is to be one, and no doubt this is the reason Professor Pray has so many loyal followers. No matter how long the waiting line nor how tiresome the task, he is always ready and willing to straighten a tangled classification. If you are in need of advice you know that you may go to him with your difficulty. You feel that he has a personal interest in you; that he expects you to "make good;" but, even though you fail, that he will still be your friend.

MISS BOARDMAN has been with the College since the establishing of its manual training department in 1901. The rapid growth of the department and the efficient work of its student in their schools about the state are sufficient proof of her ability both as instructor and business woman. Through her broad-minded interest in other lines of College work and her keen sense of justice. Miss Boardman has won the admiration and confidence of all those who associate with her.

DEAN WHITE

MISS MARION B. WHITE is a graduate of the University of Michigan, received the degree of A.M. at the University of Wisconsin, and that of Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. After taking these degrees, she was professor of mathematics at the Illinois and Kansas State Universities. Miss White also spent a year in studying at the University of Munich. In 1914 she came to the Normal College as Dean of Women and Associate Professor of Mathematics.

Arduous are the tasks and constant the duties of one who controls the social life of thirteen hundred girls. It must be a woman who is gentle, just, and far seeing, with large human sympathies; one who is kind but firm; and above all one of high ideals and large purposes, with an unfailing faith in humanity. And such a woman we call, "Dean."

The Perfect Treasure

The most perfect treasure our school days find—Ah! indeed what can it be?
Perhaps 'tis echoed in other mind,
This thought which has come to me.

Not lightly I pass our Teachers' regard, Those who patiently kind and true Have helped us o'er toilsome places hard By giving of all they knew.

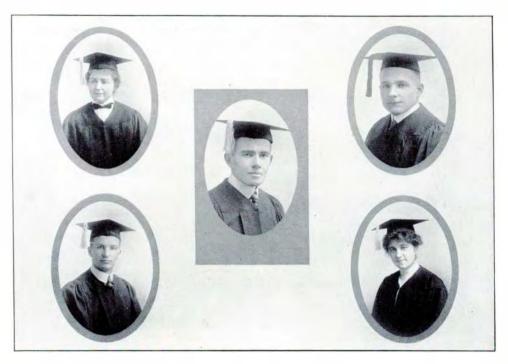

Strangely, I say, it is not found When you have made the team; Or when you to some club are bound The heights attained may seem.

Agree you not that the fairest gift Our school days here may send Is that God-like gift, a rare uplift The soul of one true friend?

A friend who gladly enters in To our hopes, our aims, our joy; This is the perfect treasure to win, A treasure without alloy.

My Senior Class

From four corners did you come,
From quiet farm and city home,
My Senior Class.

In each mind there burned an aim;
Some for knowledge, some for fame,
Others just to change their name,
My Senior Class.

We have shared our joys and sorrows,
Blue todays and bright tomorrows,
My Senior Class.

Now our school days all are past,
Ambition's goal we've reached at last,
With the future our lot is cast,
My Senior Class.

Soon the parting time will come,
Sad it will be to every one
Of my Senior Class;
But privileged am I to call,
And in some future time recall
You, my dear friends, one and all,
My Senior Class.

When my mem'ry fondly strays
To those joyous, carefree days
To my Senior Class,
Whate'er future their life shall see,
Honor will be where it should be,
To our Alma Mater, M. N. C.—
And to my Senior Class.

GLADYS A. EVANS.

Flashlights of Junior History

THE Class of 1917 arrived in Ypsilanti in installments anywhere between the twenty-first and twenty-fifth of September, 1915. Some came by rail, some in other conveyances and others via the personal propulsion route. Those who came in the earliest part of the period mentioned above almost decided to return to their homes and mothers before school opened.

Saturday, September the twenty-fifth, stands out vividly on the horizon of our first year's College memories. On that day, after wriggling and writhing to and fro through the seething mass of would-be school teachers in Normal Hall for some hours, we, poor, verdant, unsophisticated mortals that we WERE, succeeded in bringing to completion that task of tasks, our first classification.

Sunday, the twenty-sixth, was a long, long day, and the thoughts of the members of the Class of '17 who were away from home for the first time were long, l-o-n-g thoughts. Every church service was considered "an opportunity to be embraced." There was a large attendance at the cemetery in the afternoon, and many persons were seen reading the inscriptions on the gravestones with unusual avidity in attempts to find a name that savored of home. At last, after many days, the day ended.

Monday, the twenty-seventh, was full of new wonders. None of us knew what the day would bring forth. Each of us, as we crept silently and expectantly into our respective recitation rooms, felt like a condemned man sitting in the electric chair waiting for the current which would send him into eternity. Each instructor appeared like a big, black monster, crouched, ready to spring and tear us to pieces upon the slightest provocation. But all that was due to the strangeness of our surroundings, for now we have come to revere and cherish the privilege of daily association and contact with the members of the faculty.

Our first class assembly was called on Monday, October the eighteenth. "Cud" presided, and after extending greetings in behalf of the Student Council, he appointed a committee to draft a constitution for the class.

On the following Monday morning the constitution was adopted and the officers for the year were elected. Also on this memorable day as we sallied forth from our rooming houses, we were confronted and terrified by a preponderance of hideous and threatening posters addressed to us. Until this time we had been sailing along before pleasing and favorable breezes of self-content, self-appreciation, and self-importance, but oh, that array of paper and words took all the wind from our canvas, and we were brought face to face with the full significance of our insignificance, as it were. Some of the bravest of our men, partially regaining their equilibrium and self-control during the day, called a secret meeting to see what could be done about the calumny and challenges which had been hurled in our very faces. That night about twenty of the bravest of them, under cover of the darkness, gathered around the organ in Normal Hall and decided then and there that the Seniors' challenge should be met straight from the shoulder. The valorous twenty left the main building, enlisted several of their more timid classmates, and under the leadership of Lawson, their president, they marched through the streets with the purpose of giving the upper classmen an opportunity to attack. After they had done considerable marching, the attacking party put in its appearance and hostilities were engaged in on Cross Street near the Rowima. A HOT (literal meaning) skirmish resulted in several of the men on both sides separating from various parts of their wearing apparel, shirts being especially inclined to take leave of their owners. When the smoke had cleared away, the Juniors were still on hand, but the Seniors were a missing quantity. However, the men of '17 thought that this action might be a ruse on the part of the enemy to make easier their Vandalic acts on the following night. With this in mind, the Juniors appeared the next evening augmented in numbers and courage because of their victory. But on this occasion the Seniors were conspicuous for their absence from the streets, and when a delegation was sighted it was merely a fleeting glimpse of them that we had. A few stray ones were captured at intervals during the evening and made to run the gauntlet, climb a tree of healthy proportions, sing a song, or skid a penny along the sidewalk by means of their noses. But alas, this was not all, for Cudney, the '16 president, and a few of his cohorts were taken prisoners. This was indeed the climacteric instant. The Junior posters with their acceptance of all challenges had been received from the printers. Also, two pails of rich, creamy paste and two brushes were in readiness for use. It was decided that the Senior leader was the man best fitted for the task of posting the bills—and he did post. (To whom it may concern: Mr. Ethan B. Cudney is a competent billboard advertiser. He is an artist with the paste and brush, and is a willing worker-especially so, when several Juniors with healthy persuaders are kept in close contiguity to him.—Editor's note.) Following this incident, the members of the Class of '17 were able to travel around the campus more or less unmolested.

The tug-of-war which was to have occurred November 10, was not held, because, although they had made the challenge, the Seniors did not fancy the prospect of a plunge into the icy waters of the Huron. It might be stated here that this event was not called off until the Class of '17 had been worked up to a state of eagerness and fervor for the contest by their enthusiastic and effervescent yell mistress, Marjory Struble.

The annual inter-class football game, which was played on November 27, ended in a 20 to 0 victory for our warriors. In fact, Crane, our quarter, not only whipped his own men into shape for the fray, but he was responsible for the Senior team putting in an appearance on the field.

The next big event in our history was the girls' indoor meet. Our girls elected Grace Ryan for their general manager and, indeed, they made a wise choice, for although the members of the class responded royally, the leadership of Grace was largely responsible for our wonderful amount of "pep" and the excellent showing which we made.

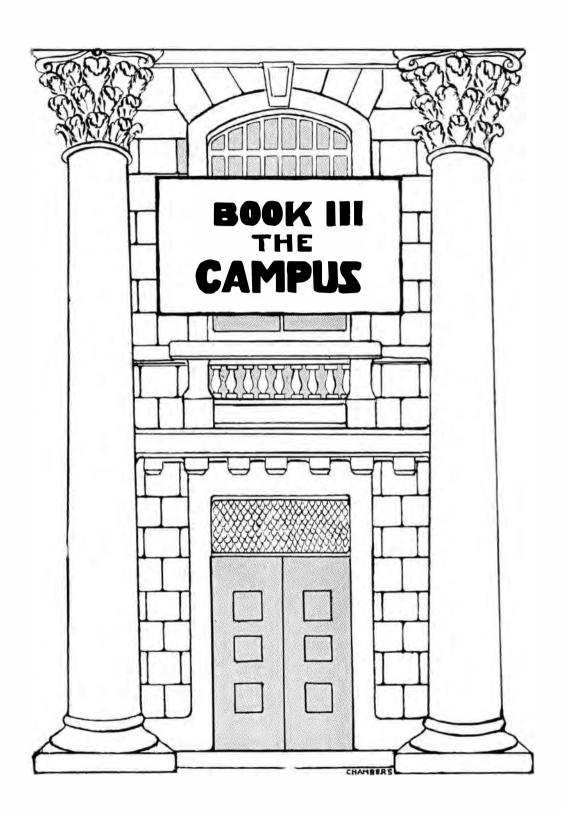

Notwithstanding the fact that in the meet proper on the evenings of March 10 and 11 we won a safe majority of the events, yet we lost out in the final scores on attendance and the preliminaries. We have no alibi to offer. The Senior girls beat us fairly and squarely and with a splendid spirit. Our girls fought hard and lost like true sportswomen.

The male members of our class, under the management of Arthur Erwin, succeeded in winning the men's indoor meet on March 18 by a small margin. However, the Seniors questioned the judges' decision and declared that the outcome of the meet really depended on the basket ball game which was to be held the following week. These objections went by the board when our men came out on top of a 32 to 26 score in this event.

As we go to press, we are expecting to win the baseball game, the tug-of-war, should our Senior brothers care to run the risk of immersion when the water warms up, and the outdoor track meet. We make this statement not in the spirit of braggadocio, but we are going into each event determined to land on top, and we have found from past experience that such is the spirit that wins.

We are just finishing the last lap of the first mile of our College course. Although we have made many missteps we feel we have run hard. Now, as the time draws near when we, in place of our worthy Senior friends who are going out into the field, will be asked to take their places of responsibility and leadership, our earnest wish and desire is that we shall be able to fill these places as they have done, with credit first to our College and then to ourselves.

Student Council

AS IN olden times, it is true now, that the things which are beneficial to a group as a whole, start in murmurs among the individual members of that group. And prosperous is that institution which has an ear delicate enough to hear these murmurs.

The Student Council is that ear for the M. S. N. C. It is made up of representatives from the classes and the most democratic organizations of the College. Through the efforts of its members, the Council has been able to hear the campus murmurs and to legislate for the best interests of the students.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Women's Self-Government Association

THE women students have been given an opportunity this year to express themselves through the Self-Government Association. They began the College year by meeting the Junior girls at the trains, helping them to classify, and giving an informal reception for them in the evening. The spring term will see another innovation, the organization of classes in social form. Long have they been needed; may their mission be fulfilled!

A spirit of unity is developing among the women of the College through the efforts of this organization. It is our sincere hope to establish a precedent among colleges because of the wholesome way in which our students respond to the responsibilities of self-government.

The Civic League

In The summer of 1912, a group of students and teachers united in an effort to help on the Michigan Equal Suffrage campaign. At the close of this campaign the organization was continued in the form of a Civic League, which was to have as its purposes the arousing of civic interest and the rendering of civic service, in the city and on the Normal campus.

To enable the League to do effective work the members were divided into small groups under individual leaders, and each group undertook some particular line of civic activity or study or both combined. There have been eight different groups in all since the beginning, and many of them have performed a real service for the institution. To the "Anti-fly" group, for example, must be largely credited the interest Ypsilanti has shown in getting rid of flies; the "Out-doors" group gave us our campus baskets and our bird-houses, and have had a hand in providing the campus with shrubs.

The Bulletin-board Committee, under the leadership of Professor Buell, has for two years kept the students and faculty in touch with matters of vital interest by means of posted clippings chosen with discrimination and good judgment. Still another group has had charge of the Daily Calendar which has done something toward systematizing our announcements and making our corridors look less like the entrance to a moving-picture show. Miss Vena Califf has been the leader of the Temperance Committee, and has done valiant work in arousing campus interest in the pressing problem of temperance. This committee has had charge of the anti-liquor posters which have been seen on or near the campus throughout the year, and it was altogether through their efforts that the State Prohibition Contest was brought to the Normal College in April.

These are only a few of the League's activities, but they illustrate the varied and fundamental interests of this organization. It believes in open eyes and open minds; it stands for cleanness, beauty, justice, service; and it maintains that every member of any social group is responsible for helping to secure these things for the good of all. During the year Dr. Eugene Shippen of Detroit addressed the student body on the theme "Civic Enthusiasm." He spoke under the auspices of the Civic League and those who heard him know in large part what League members believe and what they are trying to do.

Young Men's Christian Association

THE year now drawing to a close has been one full of success-crowned labors on the part of the Young Men's Christian Association. In its attempt to secure a spirit of friendly good fellowship among the men through the "feeds" and other social affairs, and in its effort to promote the physical well-being, to broaden the mental and spiritual outlook and to raise the ideals of its members to a higher standard, it has met with gratifying results.

The social gatherings have been numerous and highly enjoyable. Chief among them are the Thanksgiving party with its memories of the pie-race, the men's banquet, attended by almost one hundred men, and the enthusiastic, "pep-full" meeting accompanying the installation of new officers. These meetings, with the social hours following the Sunday programs, have drawn the men together in ties of friendship that shall long endure.

In other than social work the Association has not been idle. The lectures given under its auspices by Dr. Seerley have met the need of the men for help in their personal problems. Inspirational talks by faculty members have made the Sunday meetings a force in campus life. Addresses by such men as Prof. Ryder of the M. A. C., Prof. Henderson of Ann Arbor, Prof. Harrop of Albion, Dr. Andrew Thomas Smith of the Thomas Normal Training School, and Fred B. Smith, one of America's greatest Y. M. C. A. workers, have been a part of the Association's campaign for College betterment. The service rendered to new students through the publication of a Student's Hand-book and through the work of the Employment Bureau exemplifies its spirit of helpfulness. Its Bible Study groups, Sunday programs, and wide opportunities for committee or personal work have given its members growth through study and service.

This year's membership list includes over two-thirds of the College men. The work of the Association has had the loyal support of both students and faculty. It is recognized that in the College life there is a large place which it alone is able to fill, a work which it alone can do. It will surely continue to be a strong uplifting force in the years to which it looks forward.

OFFICERS FOR YEAR 1915-1916

Corresponding Secretary C. P. Steimle

THE organization known as the Men's Union was established early in October, 1914, after several previous efforts to organize had proved unsuccessful. Every man in the College was made eligible, and might become a member upon the payment of a nominal membership fee. Following out the purposes for which it was organized the Union has exerted itself to bring the men into as intimate touch with each other and the needs of the College as possible.

Last fall when the new students arrived, members of the Union were on hand to give the men a hearty welcome, and to help them in whatever way they could. Later several informal parties were given at the Gymnasium, but the big event for the Union this year was the staging of the annual banquet at the M. E. church. Practically every man was in attendance, and with the help of a professional magician from Detroit, the occasion was, indeed, a wide-awake one. It was through the efforts of this organization that the high school Basket Ball tournament was brought to Ypsilanti this winter and the visiting teams were so well entertained.

Steps are now being taken to acquaint the boys in high schools about the state with the advantages offered at the Normal, so that next year the male membership of the College will, no doubt, be materially increased. With this large attendance in view, the Men's Union is looking forward to a very active year of 1916-1917.

The Oratorical Association

THE activities of the Oratorical Association are carried forward by the Oratorical Board, consisting of nineteen representative students and Professor McKay of the faculty. The elective officers for 1915-1916 are Rufus R. Humphrey, degree, president for a second year; Harry D. Hubbard, '16, vice-president; Hewitt M. Smith, '16, secretary; Orlo J. Robinson, degree, treasurer; Philip D. Boyce, '16, state delegate, and George Lawson, '17, reporter.

The annual Interpretative Reading contest held in April, 1915, was won by Veola E. Gifford, '15, who was awarded a ten dollar gold piece. The second place and a five dollar gold piece went to Isabel Lokie, '16. The honors of the second annual Junior Public Speaking contest held in June, were awarded to Harry D. Hubbard. Eva Ruth Arent received second place. The prizes given were fifteen dollars and ten dollars. During the last week of the spring term the second annual Awarding of College Honors was held in Normal Hall before a large audience of students and faculty; and with appropriate speeches and amid great enthusiasm, those who had engaged in intercollegiate contests were presented with gold medals.

This year may readily be called the banner year in debating and oratory. A new woman's debating club, the Wodeso, was organized in November with Elma C. Moore, '16, as its first president. Accompanied by fifty-five rooters, the first Normal woman's team went to Albion College for a debate on the minimum wage for women question on January 14th. Although defeated, they put up a worthy fight for honors. The men conducted a dual debate with Hillsdale College on December 10th on the question of legalizing boycotts, both sides winning on their opponents' platform by a divided decision. On February 18th occurred the second debate with Ferris Institute, a dual contest in which the Normals distanced their opponents and received the unanimous decision of the judges in both places. A single debate with Adrian College is to be held at Adrian, May 12th, for which our team is industriously preparing, as the Aurora goes to press. In no year has so much really able material shown up in debate. It may be added that no little credit is due to Professors Elliott and Pearce for their efficient work as critics of the Forum and Webster clubs.

Our representatives in regular oratory were Leo E. Duvall, '16, and Eva Ruth Arent, '16, who did commendable work in the state contest at Hillsdale, March 3rd; each received fifth place. In the contest of the Michigan Peace Oratorical Association held at Albion, March 17th, with high-class competition, our orator, Harry D. Hubbard, '16, was awarded first place and a fifty dollar testimonial, and will enter the interstate contest held at the James Millikin University, Decatur, Illinois, on May 8th. A strong oration entitled, "Peace for War," combined with a brilliant delivery made his effort an event in the year's activities. This year we consider ourselves firmly established as a member of the Michigan Intercollegiate Prohibition Association. Strenuous preliminaries, in which ten contestants entered, resulted in the selection of Orlo J. Robinson to represent the College in the state prohibition contest to be entertained in Pease Auditorium, April 21st. He was awarded fifteen dollars in money.

The interests and machinery making for platform effectiveness have never worked together more smoothly, nor has better spirit prevailed. We look backward with pride and forward with anticipation.

Ideals and Realities

L IKE Christian on his journey to the Holy City man moves up the slopes of civilization. He carries upon his back the traditions of all the past. He toils up the Hill of Difficulty. He grapples with the Giant Despair. He passes through the Slough of Despond. He tarries in the city of Vanity Fair. In his struggle upward he catches visions of ideals before him, ideals whole winsomeness and beauty lure him always onward. Yet ever is he held back from their realization by a principle that through the centuries has made man exalt personal prerogative above the general welfare. * * That principle opposes reform, oppresses the poor, sullies our politics, and tyrannizes over labor. Yes, we Americans illustrate it, for it pervades our social life, our industry, our politics, and the question everywhere crying out for answer is, "What are we going to do about it?"

In our social life there is a spirit of each one jealously guarding what he has and reaching out for more. The new social age in which we live has accentuated competition in social age in which we live has accentuated competition in every field and intensified the age-long struggle of man. * * We covet for the race purity, strength, happiness. Yet we harbor the veritable enemy of our prosperity. Year after year the voter is given a chance to free his community of this organized evil and year after year he disregards the most solemn truth of human society: "No man liveth unto himself alone," and casts his vote to keep it in his midst. Thus he silently balances personal interests against an ideal. And thus he illustrates the principle that runs through the warp and woof of our social life, a principle that seals his lips, blinds his eyes, and deafens his ears to what is right. Do you ask what that principle is? None other than selfishness—human selfishness.

Industry is another battle ground for the war of selfishness. Why is it that we have a labor question at all? For the reason that the laborer and the employer are not intimate associates as they were in the past. * * * Individualism, rampant in its selfishness, still pervades great organizations operating on a scale and with a control over the many unprecedented in history.

How about the field of government? Consider the relations existing between politics and business. Business men have allowed themselves to think that they must be allied with the political "machine" for self-defense. They have gone so far as to say that this alliance is encouraged by our political system. "Big Business" has crept into the by-ways of our law making and gained protection within the walls of state and federal capitals. * * But not hopelessly, for the people and the politicians are going to climb the slow road together to the uplands where the air is fresher, where the whole talk of mere politicians is stilled, where we can look into each other's faces and know there is nothing to conceal. Today, as centuries ago, man still labors for personal interest. But always before him are ideals brightening the darkest day with hope. Selfishness arrayed against them seems at times to defy their realization. Undaunted, steadfast, man struggles on toward the goal. For to him has come a vision—a vision of what is best for him, best for his country, best for posterity.

Ladies and gentlemen, we stand today in the presence of a revolution, a revolution in which we Americans shall gain in practice the ideals we have always professed; a revolution that shall cut down the barbed-wire entanglements of dissolute politics; storm the Dardanelles of social injustice; scale the Alps of industrial greed; a revolution that shall leave in its wake a better America, a nobler American.

Citizens of the United States, with determination deep graven on our hearts, we must go forth to play our part intelligently, courageously, devotedly; to square practice with preaching and performance with promise; to push back, back the hordes of selfishness until victory crests our banner and the day is ours. With the first great American whose ideals were woven into the splendid realities of our nation, "Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."

An extract from the oration given at Hillsdale by Leo DuVall

Labor's Hope

THIS is a day when the agitator demands a thousand reforms. When his call becomes irresistible, men pause, first to think, then to feel, and ultimately to act. Yet how labored is society's advance! Politics are still infected with evil practices. Religious ideals are still seen, as through a glass darkly. Men still live in wrong social relations.

Why has the church constantly striven to bring about a spirit of brotherhood between men and to spread a wholesome influence over the earth, and yet, in the light of world conditions, met with so little response? Why have social organizations, coming into closest touch with men and demonstrating the power of organization, not penetrated to the heart of society's need? Why has education, cultivating the power of reasoning and the passion of sympathy, not revealed the way to social contentment? Why has the press, extending its influence to the very borders of civilization, not brought home to man's consciousness the fundamental weakness of our industrial struggle? Yes, all these agencies of reform have led mankind up into enlightenment, but they have not thrown into full focus the central cause of today's evils.

Why are these agencies ineffective? Because they have never recognized the fact that reforms for the laborer must come through the medium of his everyday life. his labor that the needs, opportunities, hopes, and purposes as expressed in his plain work-a-day activities make manifest the real man * * * a-day activities make manifest the real man.

Consequently the common man's problem cannot be worked out directly by the church, the social organization, the school, or the press, but must come through the establishment of equitable relations between the great laboring masses and the potent employing classes.

Existing relations between labor and capital make clear the need of reform. On the one hand are the labor unions with the strike and the boycott as weapons; on the other, the employers' associations with the black-list, spies, private detectives, and strike breakers as instruments to their ends. * * Here is the obstacle to reform. The two great economic forces of the land are grappling in endless struggle and neutralizing the value of both to

What is the remedy? Two years ago a great captain of industry had a vision of these powerful organizations uniting their forces in the interests of both. In their common ranks shoulder to shoulder he saw employer and employee. He put that vision into practice and we know him today as Henry Ford, the champion of the laboring man. * *

This suggests the solution of today's greatest problem. The employers' associations must take the first step. They must give to the workman a wage sufficient for him to live in decency, must teach him how to use it, and shorten his hours that he may build up a model home life. The labor unions must respond by encouraging the laborer to co-operate with the employers in the perfecting of these purposes.

As we turn to the future, magnificent with possibilities, we see these two great classes uniting to fight their common enemies—bitterness, greed, and selfishness. The workman hastens to his home at the close of day to greet the happy wife and revel in the companionship of his children. The employer returns to his home after a day's supervision of the work he and his men have accomplished. He contrasts with satisfaction the bitter antagonism of the old days with the spirit of genuine interest and co-operation which now everywhere prevails.

How shall labor's hope be realized? Capital must learn that the laborer is worthy of his hire. Labor must found its future on the rock of concord and good will. We, as American citizens, can unite in a mighty and constructive protest, intelligent and sympathetic, that shall mould a public opinion in the home, in society, in the church, at the polls, everywhere, and always, sounding its slogan of co-operation. Under the sway of wise legislation backed by public spirit these forces shall join hands and in the words of the bard,

"Those opposed eyes, Which like the meteors of a troubled Heaven, All of one nature, of one substance bred, That did lately meet in the intestine shock, Shall now in mutual well-beseeming ranks, March all one way."

Then shall the barriers of distrust be swept aside and in a new land and the light of a new day shall shine the sun of labor's hope.

An extract from the oration given at Ypsilanti by Orlo J. Robinson

Construction Versus Destruction

Life is a serious business for any living species. It always has been and always will be. It is serious for the species as a whole, and for each component individual. Every living species has behind it a life history, and ahead of it the problem of perpetuating itself upon earth. This is the meaning of "the struggle for existence,"—not a struggle of individual against individual, but a racial struggle, wherein each normal individual contributes his mite in the larger interest of the racial whole. This is true of all the lower species; it is equally true of man.

Of all the members of the human species, we of the United States are specially favored; favored by our traditions of the past, and by our ideals for the future. The race as a whole needs today our example and service in its great, interesting, and all-absorbing struggle for continued, immortal existence upon earth. * * Before we can prove efficient either as leaders or as contrades in arms without neighbors, we have on hand a very present struggle with ourselves. Our greatest contestants in this struggle are ignorance, greed and alcohol,—greed, which emanates from ignorance and thrives upon it, and alcohol, which thrives upon both. * * *

I need not portray the evils that follow in the train of alcohol. On the battle-fields of Europe, where greater endurance and efficiency are today required than were ever manifested in the peaceful pursuits of industry, military and medical authorities agree that alcohol is the greatest single enemy of individual and national welfare. * * *

Against the dawning of our ideal tomorrow, the American saloon rears its frowning aspect as a foe that must be wrestled with, an issue that must be met. One answer only can we give to its challenge. We must banish it from our land, banish it, not only for our own sake, as a nation, but for the sake of the universal human family. * * *

In the successful and permanent achievement of this object, three movements must constitute the main factors. We must have a national prohibitory amendment; we must have universal suffrage; and we must develop a type of education consciously directed to the reaching of our national ideal. * * *

Local option in various units, and even state-wide prohibition, though valuable and useful, have not proved adequate. Experience shows that we must have nation-wide prohibition, registered in the form of a constitutional amendment. To this end, the strong manhood of the country must give its strength, its courage and its unflagging interest.

In addition to a constitutional amendment, we must have universal suffrage. I hold that woman has at least an equal racial and national interest with man, and equal capacity for deciding the great questions that affect the life and progress of the race and nation. The male voters do not truly represent the most vital interests of the day, and therefore I demand universal suffrage as a means of climinating the saloon with the full consent of the governed. * * *

Besides universal suffrage, we need a new type of education that will embody clearer and more compelling ideals of national and racial life. Ignorance is the condition by which the saloon rules and holds its sway. We must educate both the man and woman, and prepare them for a high sense of responsibility, to fight with a ballot, until we finally triumph. * * *

The dawn of such an era is surely approaching. Present reforms are shedding forth their light upon the future and ushering in a better and hrighter day. From its zenith the sun of progress shall send down its beams upon a nation of happy homes where fathers, mothers, and children shall be bound by the ties of love, health, and justice; where all mankind shall be united by the bonds of brotherhood. The stars above shall witness their glory reflected in the stars of our national banner, and those sacred stars and stripes, the emblem of a truer liberty and a nobler justice, shall ever float above a people of mighty achievement, whose lofty ideals have demanded as the price of its progress the banishment of the saloon.

An extract from the oration given at Albion by Harry D. Hubbard

Peace for War

STRUGGLE is essential to life and progress. * * True of Danimals, it is equally true of man. * * History makes clear that only by conflict have modern nations attained their places in the world. When a nation ceases to expend energy in virile struggle, real struggle, it inevitably loses its courage, its zest for life, and has already entered upon the downward road to extinction. So vividly has this been illustrated and so successfully has war served as a medium for liberating national energy, that this program has impressed the idea that only through the cultivation of the iron spirit, the fighting, masterful virtues, can a nation insure its future. * * *

True, war has advanced civilization. It has supplied the element of struggle for the centuries of the past. Why not continue it in the future? Because the inhuman crueities of modern warfare have aroused the general disapproval even of belligerent nations. Obsessed with the idea of domination, men devise new implements of devastation, demanding a complete alteration of the tactics of war, and tripling the sorrow and miseries of the unfortunate. From the blood-soaked fields of Alsace to the barren plains of Siberia, from the surging waters of the Dardanelles to the ruins of Belgium, echo the distressful lamentations of the victims of this reign of terror. Never before has the world heen forced to witness a scene so enveloped in horrors and so steeped in the repulsions that have persisted from a bygone age. * * *

Does not the world today face the demand for a new force to take the place of war? A force that involves all its competition, strife, labor, and domination, yet which eliminates its brutalities, one which will insure the maintenance of a vigorous, hardy and enduring race. The fault of the peace advocates thus far, and a principal reason for their failure hitherto, is because their ideal of peace lacks the elements of war. They anticipate a quiet, peaceful country, glowing with prosperity, with nothing to molest the even flow of sluggish content. But if peace is to take the place of war it must not be to realize this Utopian condition. Its purpose must still be struggle. * * *

The most successful nation in the world today must accept for its watch word, freedom, ves, liberty, ves, but above all, discipline. The American must accept the doctrine that man lives for society and not society for man, he must subordinate his own interests to the interests of the whole. * * * * The first problem confronting the peace advocates is that of readjusting the American's concept of liberty, of establishing the idea that man must live for others and not for himself alone, that he is a part, a necessary part, but only a part of a broad compre-banding creature which has for its slower co-oneration and unity. * * If the strenuous life hensive system which has for its slogan, co-operation and unity. * If the strenuous life which war supplies is to be continued in the future, then man must be given such work to perform as will develop the manliness and courage so strongly advocated as the true value of war. * If you call this Utopian, if you still insist that without war-swept fields and minespread seas, national and racial integrity cannot be maintained, I point you to Colonel Goethals in his war upon the slides of Panama, to Pasteur, who marshalled an army of physicians against the deadly microbe; I point to Franklin, Marconi and Edison who harnessed the thunderbolts of Zeus; I point to the doughty Hollanders who, centuries ago, drove back the sea and from their sturdy breastworks repel with eternal vigilance the threatening of the stormy deep; I point to the humble pioneers of our own land who, with axe and pick and plow, subdued the forest, the mountains, and prairies and forced from them a tribute of wealth and happiness. The great need of today is that man shall be trained to know his real enemies and, knowing them, to make his struggle a disciplined, scientific, aspiring, and invincible contest for supremacy over a primeval nature and a primeval society. * * * This new period of enlightenment with its new vision of conquest will dawn upon a country full of life and vigor. * * A new type of warrior will then be developed, the type which Paul foresaw, Paul the Apostle, who himself fought the good fight, before him buckled the breastplate of righteousness. On his bead the helmet of salvation, in his hand the sword of the spirit, his fight "is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the rulers of world darkness, against the hosts of wickedness in high places."

Glowing with the spirit of accomplishment, he will endow society with that richness of nature, that purity of manner, that loyalty and wisdom which can only be possessed by those who have rejected the follies of war and have turned their energy to higher and more belpful stringgles, struggles that uplift and not destroy, struggles that are constructive and not destroctive. And when that day shall come, strong with the strength of a nobler courage. America shall demonstrate to the world the value of peace for war.

Laonian Drama Society

THE Laonian Drama Society was organized in 1913 under the patronage of Professor Abigail Pearce. The purpose of the society is primarily the study of modern dramatic literature. During the year of 1915-1916 particular attention has been paid to Irish plays, especially the works of J. M. Synge and Lady Gregory. The society has also worked out the dramatization of some short stories, and expects to write an original one-act play.

LAONIAN DRAMA SOCIETY

The Minerva Literary Society

THE year of 1915-1916 has been of exceptional interest in the Minerva Literary Society. With the help of Miss Downing, Miss Collins, and Miss Gardner, we have taken up the study of prominent living writers and their works, and some of the important and interesting problems of today together with the leaders. This study has proved to be not only extremely interesting, but very instructive.

MINERVA LITERARY SOCIETY

The Portia Literary Society

THE Portia Literary Society has devoted its meetings during the year 1915-1916 to story telling. The stories have been taken from the great operas and from old classics.

The society has been happy to welcome Dr. Alma Blount as an honorary member, and to reclaim Miss Estabrook Rankin, a former critic, who has returned from a leave of absence. Miss Carey has, as in the past, been a great help to the society.

EUCLIDEAN SOCIETY

THE desire to create a stronger class spirit and a closer fraternal relationship among the specializing students of the Manual Training Department suggested and promoted the organization of the Craftsman Club in the winter of 1912. It was hoped that the club would afford its members an opportunity to study the actual industrial requirements as related to the schools, and to gain a broader knowledge of the field of education. With this in view reports have been given relating to the history and development of the different branches of manual training. The social side, while not especially emphasized, is encouraged and accepted as an important factor in all educational work.

Practical in its purpose, broad in its aim, with efficiency as its watchword, the club faces the future confident of a widening field of usefulness.

KINDERGARTEN CLUB

Art Club

THE Normal Art Club was organized on an honorary basis in 1915. This plan has been continued during the present year with the view of raising the standard of scholarship in the Art Department. It has been the aim of the Club to make it a permanent organization of the institution; one which will promote the interests of the Normal College, and especially those of Art in the widest sense.

The social activities of the Club have been for the purpose of creating cooperation and fellowship among the members.

It is the sincere hope of the Art Club of 1916 that those of future years will not only continue the work already started, but will raise it to a much higher plane of activity. We bequeath to them what little we have done with our wishes for their success.

The Catholic Students' Club

In THE years past the Catholic students attending the Michigan State Normal College and Cleary Business College have attempted to meet in a social way. About four years ago a permanent organization was established, and today it is a flourishing Club with a membership of one hundred seventy-five.

The meetings are informal gatherings held twice a month in St. John's Club Rooms. Besides the social functions and business meetings, the members are privileged to enjoy short talks on vital and interesting subjects by men and women of standing who have a message worth while.

The Club is governed by a simple constitution and is maintained by moderate dues. The organization was established to promote social intercourse, social betterment, and a deeper appreciation of responsibilities and possibilities.

Sorority Council

P OR some time there has been a feeling among the sororities that there should be some kind of an organization to bring them into closer relation, and in view of this fact in the spring of 1915 action was taken toward the organization of a Sorority Council. During the term officers for the year 1915-1916 were elected and the work definitely begun.

The purpose of this organization is to bring about unity of action and cooperation among the sororities.

The Council is composed of two representatives from each sorority and meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month.

The Pre-Medic Club

ESTABLISHED 1916

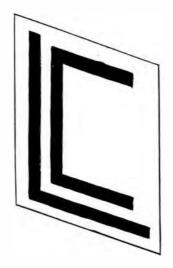

THE newly formed Pre-Medic Club was organized under the auspices of the Science Department and recognized by the Normal College. The object of the Club is to unite and give enthusiasm to a group of students who are contemplating a medical course. The meetings have been interesting and well attended. With Dr. Bertram Smith as patron and a number of enthusiastic members, the Pre-Medic Club promises to become an important factor in Campus activities.

COLLEGE LODGE CLUB

The Oakland Club

THE year 1916 will be marked by two events of widely different nature in the history of Oakland county: the first, the celebration of its one hundredth birthday, and the second, the organization of the Oakland Club at the Michigan State Normal College. The former will undoubtedly take the form of a wonderful, historical pageant, showing the progress made since the first white man came to make his home in its wilderness. The latter event, though fraught with meaning to its promoters, can be only a prophecy, but when we consider the object, aim, and personnel of its members, we feel assured that a useful future awaits it; that as the years roll by and class after class passes out from the portals of our loved College, some future historian, in looking over the records of the Oakland Club, may say, "Verily, those boys and girls of 1916 builded better than they knew."

THE OAKLAND CLUB

The Physical Education Club

DURING the past year the members of the Physical Education Club have enjoyed a program every month.

October: Mrs. Burton gave a report of the Teachers' Convention held in Saginaw, after which Mr. Bowen led in a general discussion of physical work.

November: Mr. Lawson gave a talk comparing the Physical Education work in the Iowa, Kansas, and Michigan State Normal Colleges.

December: A mock vaudeville show was given at the Gymnasium. The great success of this event was due to the excellent way in which it was managed.

February: Mr. Pearl, the assistant supervisor of Physical Education in Detroit, gave an interesting and helpful talk.

April: A business meeting combined with a social meeting was held at Starkweather Hall to discuss the question of the Meets. An informal dancing party was also given at the Gymnasium and was greatly enjoyed by all who attended.

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

The Normal Choir

THE Normal Choir has now become an organization distinguished beyond the borders of its own home, because of the rare quality of its singing. It is a group of 200 singers, few of whom are soloists of training.

A special honor was given the Choir through the two invitations extended by the Board of Directors of the Detroit Museum of Art, to give programs on their series of Sunday afternoon lectures. The Board advisedly selected the Normal Choir, because as an art product, they considered it unique, and well worthy of a hearing in that center where only art offerings of distinction can be given.

Through the courtesy of the Society of Arts and Crafts of Detroit, the Choir has appeared three times in St. Paul's Cathedral, once before the members of the Society and a few guests, and twice before an interested public, which crowded its very doors. A number of invitations from other sources have been received, but circumstances forbade their acceptance.

The Choir sings mainly alla cappella, voicing the music of all nations and of all times, and singing medieval ecclesiastical compositions, as well as modern part songs. Frequently compositions have been given their first presentation in this country, by the Normal Choir.

Among the most distinctive features of the College year are the Christmas and Easter Concerts given by the Choir and playing of old carols on the clavichord gives a quaint touch to the program of music of the olden times.

Professor Frederick Alexander, the Conductor of the Normal Choir and the Director of the Normal Conservatory of Music, is the moving genius of this group of singers, who is entirely responsible for the type of programs given, and for the poetic and spiritual interpretation of every number.

The College is indeed fortunate in having a man of sound scholarship, broad sympathies, and contagious enthusiasm to give to young people going out over the state such a vision of what is great in the world of music.

THE NORMAL CHOIR

Ferris Club

N THE evening of October 9, 1915, several former members of the Ferris Institute met and re-organized the Club of 1914-1915. During the early fall several meetings were held, one of which was a social gathering in Starkweather Hall. On November 27, the Club attended a reception given at Ann Arbor by the University Ferris Club; February 11, a reception, in which the members of the Ann Arbor Club were the guests, was given in the Masonic Temple. This series of events was crowned by the Annual University Ferris Institute banquet at Ann Arbor, which was attended by old F. I.'s from this section of the state, including the majority of the members of the Ypsilanti Club.

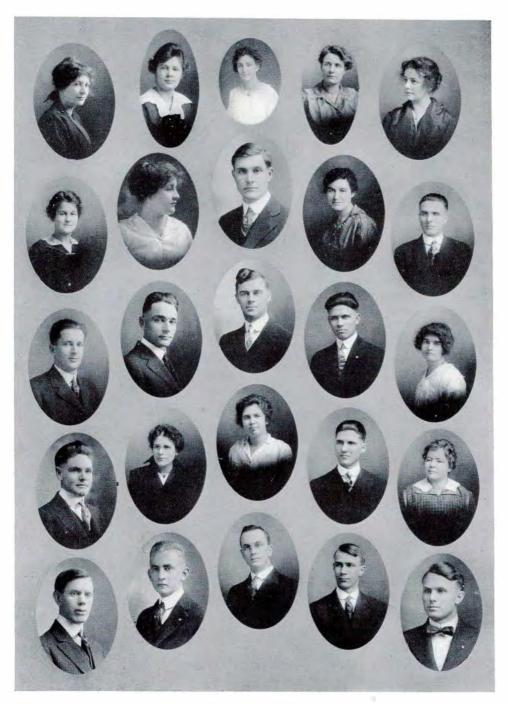

The Club has proved to be a very beneficial social organization to its members. Besides making new and firm friends among the other students of M. S. N. C., they have more firmly cemented the friendships formed at F. I.

SELF-GOVERNING

POR some time it has been felt among the men students of this College that there should be some organization among them, not only to increase the spirit of unity and sense of responsibility toward one another, but also to deal with such questions concerning students' life as do not come under the supervision of the faculty. With this aim in view the Rowima Club was established early in the winter quarter.

Athletics

With athletic facilities embracing two gymnasiums, up-to-date in structure and equipment, and fifteen acres of outdoor athletic fields the Physical Training Department of the Michigan State Normal compares favorably with that of any college in the country. The large gymnasiums are fitted with four bask thall courts, an indoor track, two new swimming pools, and twelve hundred steel lockers. It contains also, offices, class rooms, and rooms for corrective work. The outdoor equipment consists of eighteen tennis courts, a cinder track, and twelve acres of football, baseball, hockey, and soccer field.

Athletics are under the careful and earnest supervision of nine instructors. The two new instructors, Professor Samson and Professor Mitchell, have been a great asset to the department. The former comes to us with practical experience from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, New York, and the Kansas State Normal School. A year of post graduate work at the Springfield, Massachusetts, Physical Training School has especially fitted him for the position which he now holds. Professor Mitchell comes well prepared from the University of Michigan, where he was a member of the football, basket ball, and baseball teams, having been captain of 'Varsity baseball in '12. He gain d more experience at the Grand Rapids Union high school, where he turned out state title contenders in football, basket ball, and track.

The Normal College realizes the close relationship between one's physical and mental self, and remembering this relation, it takes as its motto, "Athletics for everybody." It stands not only for the physical betterment of the fortunate few who compose its competitive teams, but for the physical betterment of its entire student body. Because of this basic idea, every student before graduation finds himself or herself taking advantage of one or more of the opportunities that are offered in the Physical Training Department.

Football

WITH six old men returning to school and an unusually large number of new candidates turning out for the first practices, the Normal football team of last fall had a promising start. On this account the strong schedule of games which confronted the team was faced with an optimistic spirit by both players and rooters.

The season ended with four victories by decisive cores, one tie, and two defeats by the closest of margins. The scoreless tie with University All-Fresh is the best showing that the Normal has ever made against that team. That the team did not finish up as strongly as its early victories would warrant is due to the unfortunate injuries which crippled our backfield. Two of our regular halfbacks did not play at all in the last two games, and the team had to be shifted to make up for their loss.

The season was, furthermore, marked by a spirit of unity among the players and a willingness to work. The men gave their best at all times. The Normal spirit was evident in our rooters at all of our home games, and it is unfortunate that our hardest games were played away from home where our team could not be cheered by this enthusiasm.

The fine showings of the 1914 and 1915 football teams entitle the Normal to a standing in athletics among the best colleges of Michigan.

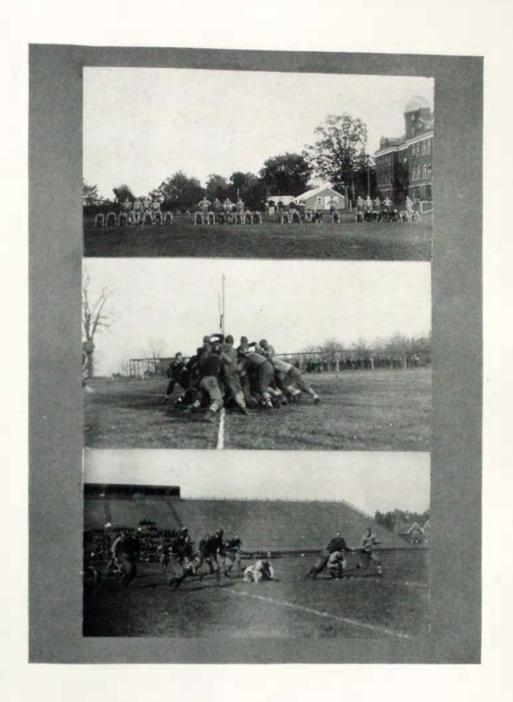

College Reserve Football Team

Some of the largest accomplishments of the nineteen-fifteen football reserves:

- 1. Aided in the preparation of the first team.
- 2. Held Michigan All-Fresh reserves to one touchdown.
- 3. Won from Hillsdale reserves 19-0.

Soccer

THE season opened inauspiciously with but one letter man back. About thirty answered the call for candidates, and an enthusiasm surpassing that of previous years was shown for the sport. Since it is a comparatively new game in this country, and a recent addition to the athletics of M. S. N. C., toccur, unlike our other sports, is played by men who have had neither knowledge nor experience of the game before coming to college. However, it was only a short time until Coach Samson had his men kicking the hall with the ability of experienced players.

A team may be judged by the teams with which it plays. The soccer team played the best talent with which it was possible to schedule games. In contending with Walkerville and the Fords, we met teams composed of foreigners, players to whom soccer is as much a national game as baseball is to us. Walkerville, our most formidable enemy, had won a trophy for three successive years, making them the champions of the Peninsular League, Canada. They displayed the true English idea of sportsmanship, being fair at all times, and even in the heat d parts of the game offering us valuable advice and words of consolation. The U. of M. team also had among its men five who were from the colleges of eastern nations where soccer is held above other sports, and helped make up a team of superior opponents.

Taught an appreciation of the game by the good work of Professor Samson, graduate soccer men will go out into the high schools of the state and do much to popularize the sport, so that in a few years experienced material will be furnished the college.

The outlook for next year's soccer is excellent. With four veterans, who know the game, the M. S. N. C. should have a team which will put this college at the head of the list of those who play soccer.

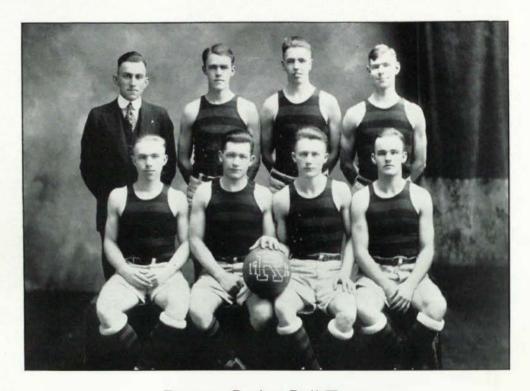

Basket Ball

THE success of the Normal basket ball team has not been due to the presence of any particular star player or players as in former years, but more to the five team mates working unselfishly together.

With but one veteran, Captain Mead, returning to school, and a hard schedule of fourt en games to face, prospects for a successful season looked far from bright. However, by hard practice, team work and speed were developed, which resulted in the winning of ten of the above games. The four other games were lost by narrow margins.

The team of 1916 has upheld the high standard established by their prodecessors. We wish the teams in the future even letter success.

Baseball

I MMEDIATELY after the spring vacation about fifty men appeared in uniforms of various colors to display their ability as baseball players. Six veterans of last year's team were among the group—Lawson and Torrey, pitchers: Barnes and Hynes, outfielders: Langton and Murray, infielders. There were seven pitchers among the group, and candidates for infield positions were numerous. Only two weeks' time was needed by Coach Mitchell to select the pitching staff made up of Torrey, Lawson, and Locke. A great deal of anxiety was still expressed on the campus as to who would fill the position behind the bat, but this feeling entirely disappeared after observing Lamb perform in the initial games of the season.

The first game of the season was lost to the University of Detroit by a score of 6-3. The inability of our pitchers to locate the plate was largely responsible for the loss of this game.

The second game was played at Assumption College and was won by the Normals with a score of 8-3.

The third game was lost to the University of Michigan by a 5-1 score.

In the next contest Albion was defeated on the Normal field in an interesting game by a 2-1 score.

On the following day Hillsdale took the low end of a 11-3 score, the Normals batting three pitchers from the box and registering fourteen hits.

Eleven games now remain on the schedule. The present outlook indicates that the efforts of Coach Mitchell will be repaid by the team's winning a large percentage of these games, thus giving the Normal College one of its most successful seasons in baseball.

In VIEW of the fact that only four of last year's letter men returned to school, the team this year had to be built up of new material. Although not so strong as last year's aggregation, the team was well balanced in all departments.

The indoor season opened with a near deadlock between the two classes, the Seniors having "the edge over" their under classmen by less than two points. Several college records fell that night, including the high jump and the twenty-yard hurdles; but the world's record was equaled in the twenty-yard dash. Six men journeyed to Grand Rapids to compete for the indoor championship. Here we met some of the best men in the country, representatives of the State Y. M. C. A.'s. Although we took fourth place, we stood at the head of the lists of the colleges entered.

Our first attempt at outdoor meets saw two men representing the college at the intercollegiate meet given by the Michigan Agricultural College. Our dual meets proved more successful than the intercollegiate. We met Albion College here May 5th. On May 13th we sent our squad against Hillsdale College. May 20th saw us pitted against Alma, last year's M. I. A. A. champions, and May 30th we found ourselves again in Grand Rapids at the outdoor championship meet.

Doctor—"Oh, it's nothing but an effort of Nature. Nature abhors a vacuum."

Prof. Norris (In Mythology Class)
"What did Orpheus go to the lower world for?"

Mr. German—"Don't know, Professor. What was his past history?"

WANT ADS

Wanted—A few tender Juniors for the Tug-of-War.—Bloodthirsty Seniors.

Wanted Some rooters for ball games. Cheer Leader.

Prof. Barbour (Discussing Hamlet)

"What language did the ghost use?"

Miss Bean—"Latin."

Prof. Barbour—"H'm, naturally! A dead language."

Junior (Reading Notice on Bulletin Board in Corridor)—"'Junior Assembly in Normal Hall.' Well, I wonder how they expect to get that whole Junior class in this hall and no place to sit down, either."

A wise Senior informed her where Normal Hall was.

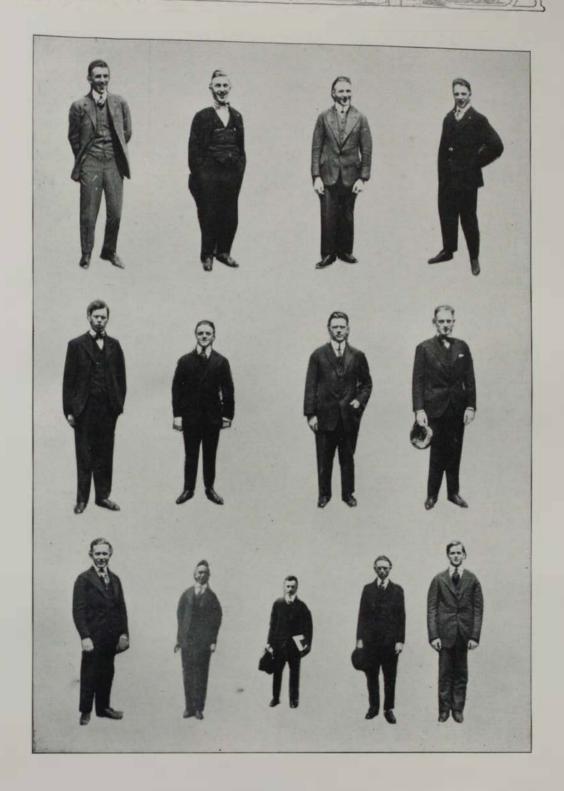

There's lots of money in the world—in the "tight-wads." (No evidence of it around the Normal.)

OVERHEARD AT A FOOTBALL GAME

First Kid "Gee! That was a dirty tackle. Look at his neek."

Second Kid—"Aw, that didn't hurt him any; 'Spike's' neek is always red."

EAR-MARKS

You can always tell a Junior
By his air of merry joy,
By the parties that he goes to,
And the slang he does employ.

You can always tell a Senior
By his bored and languid air.
By the wrinkles on his noble brow
And his weighty words of care.

Claire Langton—"Why don't they make money square so it won't roll away so fast?"

Senior—"Did you ever take chloro-form?"

Junior-"No; who teaches it?"

J. J. Jameson—"Professor Hoyt, I have come to thank you for all I know."
Prof. Hoyt—"Oh! Don't mention such a trifle."

Angry Junior (at Classification)—
"Keep off! My feet were not made to walk on."

Calm Senior—"Well, what are they for, then?"

"The one who thinks these jokes are poor,

Would straightway change his views, Could be compare the ones I print With those I did not use."

F-Fierce lessons

L-Late hours.

U—Unexpected company.

N-Not correct.

K-Kicked out.

Lyman—"Who wants to go to the board?"

Grace Kruse—"I don't know whether I can go right through it or not."

CLASS STONES

Freshman—Emerald.
Sophomore—Soapstone.
Junior—Grindstone.
Senior—Tombstone.

Prof. Pray "I just rolled down the map for the other class."

H. Smith (in Grammar)—"You put a conjugation on a solid dotted line."

Margaret S. "What could be more sad than a man without a country?"

Norma A.—"A country without a man.

Prof. Peet—"I fill this cup of water into which I plunge—

Miss Shultes (to Miss Baker yawning) "Are you sleepy?"

Gail Baker—"No ma'am, only I can't keep my mouth shut."

Miss Alpermann—"Tomorrow we will take page 71 and now you may all turn over."

Prof. Pray—"Why are you late?"
Mr. German —"Class began before I got here."

Prof. Pearce—"Mr. Reid. you may do the next problem."

C. Reid—"Where shall I do it? On my paper or in my head?"

Prof. Pearce—"Do it where you have the most room."

C. Reid—"All right, I'll do it in my head, then."

Juhl (Fondly Caressing His Blonde Pompadour) to Druggist—"Give me a bottle of peroxide."

Druggist (Handing Him Bottle) —
"Forty cents, please."

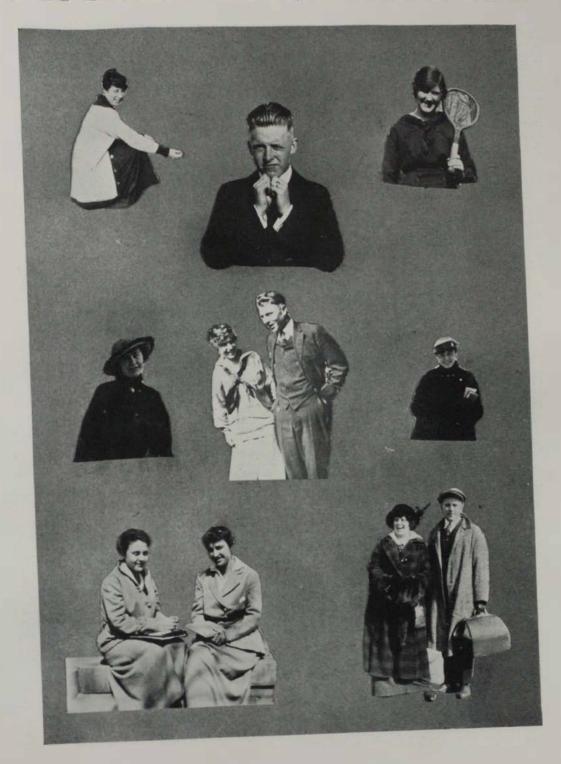

Juhl (Starting Back in Dismay) "Why I never paid more than a quarter for peroxide."

Druggist (Patiently)—"Well, you see, this European war is making everything higher."

Juhl "Here, give it to me quick before it goes up again."

"Hello! You on the football team this year?"

Mr. Filher—"No, I can't keep those beastly football trousers creased."

From a book of New Quotations: "Let me dream again." — Ralph Iameson.

"I am Sir Oracle, and when I ope my lips, let no dog hark."—H. Hub-

"A youth who has arrived at such a pitch of self-esteem that he never mentions himself without taking off his hat."—Geo. Frasier.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'I'm jilted again.'"—"Stub" Webb.

Every man is a fool at least ten times a day. Wisdom consists in not exceeding the speed limit.

Advice to Juniors: Neckties and socks should be seen and not heard.

It is said that Miss Walton wishes to exert an uplifting influence in the library and yet she encourages low conversation.

HEARD IN THE BACK ROW AT ASSEMBLY

"Only ten-thirty! Help! I suffer untold agonies."

"Whoa, mister! Not quite so much arm movement."

"Say, his voice is as good as a dose of soothing syrup."

"Nothing the matter with his lungs."
"Cheer up, kid, there ain't no hell."

"Well, if Heaven is anything like this, I don't want to go there when I die."

"Some day and lots of it."

"Isn't her new hat a perfect scream?"

"On Wednesday mornings at ten o'clock I wish I were dead."

"Aw! Come on and be a sport."

"Do you think he really means us?"

"Oh, girls, they've got a fine show at the 'Martha' tonight!"

"Shall we hand in Grace's slip?"

Dear Teacher:—I think I would mark my pupils on effort and not on excellence. If the pupil does the best he can, he does well and should have credit accordingly. It is generally supposed that the Recording Angel follows this system, isn't it?

"The Juniors."

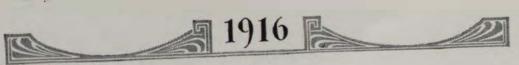

Mr. McKay—"Two people should not use the same fountain pen."

Mary Jeffries-"Why, isn't it sanitary?"

In Junior Comp—"He jumped into the air and started to run."

We have worried long about Herbert Dunbrook and his delicate physical structure. His frail body and sunken cheeks have often caused his dear teachers to fear that Herbert was devoting too much of his precious life strength to acquiring knowledge. Now let these cruel, heartless pedagogues and pedagogesses read this and let them ponder upon this confession from a oul, goaded to it, 'twould seem, by the tortures of History of Education; for quoth Herbert in this very class, "If you're gonna be a student, you haven't time to be healthy."

Tis the season of epidemics—grippe, pneumonia and mustaches! And M. S. N. C. has them all. The last named has not attacked us in as violent a form as have the first two. In fact, what later proved to be mustache on the ruddy countenance of some of our young men were at first supposed to be a little soot from the new post office. A reverend Senior, one Rhe Tague, also has an attack—on the upper lip. As to the whyness of all this whichness we suggest that you inquire of any of the attacked gentlemen.

PUTTING IT MILDLY

St. Peter-"And who are you?"

Student—"A student from M. N. C."

St. Peter—"Did you take your school paper?"

Student-"Yes."

St. Peter—"And did you pay for it?" Stndent—"No."

St. Peter-"Well-" (But really, we'll leave it to your imagination.)

ACCIDENTS

Theodore Jefferson—Injured by a parfect recitation (record badly fractured).

"Jerry"—Struck by an idea (recovery impossible).

Marion Bailey—Overcome with a sense of her own importance.

Grace Brown—Compound fracture of the heart, caused by falling in love.

Silently, one by one, in the little books of the teachers,

Down go the zeros, the little white blossoms, the forget-me-nots of the Seniors."

Miss Collins—"What is a synonym?" Mr. Thompson—"A word to use in place of one you can't spell."

Prof. McKay (in Debating Class)—
"In order to make an effective debate one must be full of the subject."

Jasper Brown—"Oh, say! But our subject was 'Booze."

Miss Alpermann (in French Class)—
"Do you know where Mr. Gundry is?"
Tague—"No."

Just then the door opened and in walked Gundry.

Miss Alpermann—"Well, Mr. Gundry, did you come in for today or for tomorrow?"

Prof. Peet (Lecturing in Chemistry of Foods on Friday)—"We get glucose from corn. The Standard Oil Company puts out several thousand barrels of it each year as a side issue."

Prof. Peet (in Quiz on Tuesday) — "What is the source of glucose?"

Mr. Leavenworth—"The Standard Oil Company."

Boyce (in Debating Class)—"My opponent made some statements. I've forgotten what they are, but I know they weren't true."

Did you hear about Orlo Gill? He drew a potato so realistically that a potato-bug came out on it and he had to draw some Paris green to kill it.

Aurora Editor—"There were some jokes left here. Have you seen them?" Joke Editor—"Well—we read them; but we couldn't see them."

Newton—"They say Boyce is going to get $100 per."

Hopkins—"Per what?" Newton—"Perhaps."

Mrs. Priddy—"Tell of the Convention of 1860."

Miss Harmon—"I can't remember the names of the men."

Mrs. Priddy—"Just make an effort and the men will come to you."

Miss Arent (the Jokist)—"Do you know that however hungry a horse is, it never eats—a bit?"

Mr. Cudney—"I wonder if they meant anything by it?"

Mr. Gundry "By what?"

Mr. Cudney—"Why, I bought a ticket to a lecture on 'Fools,' and it said, 'Admit One.'"

With Apologies to Kipling

- When the Normal's last Annual is published and the editors all have a rest,
- When we enter that City of Refuge and take our seats with the blest,
- We shall sleep, and faith, we shall need it—we shall sleep for a month or two,
- And nothing will break our slumbers, and all care will skidoo!
- And those who are tired will be rested: they will each have a big Morris chair;
- They will never again look for "items" and never again tear their hair;
- They will smile when they think of the pictures and classes and "things" they've "gone thru;"
- And they will say to the Juniors, "There's something coming to you!"
- But soon our work will be ended, and soon we shall hear laughs or wails;
- But we will be paid for our trouble, as long as we make the sales.
- And remember this, dear readers, in this book you have seen
- That it is the work of masters, the Board of Nineteen Sixteen!

"Our Hubbard Wins State Contest"

"Michigan Wins Inter-State Contest Hubbard Brings Home the Bacon"

"'Hub' Lands Third in National Contest"

MESE are the posters which have met the gaze of Normal students during the past few weeks. The second one appeared in our main corridor on Tuesday morning, May 9, informing us of our College Peace Orator's splendid triumph in the Inter-State Peace Oratorical Contest held at Decatur, Illinois, the night before. The sight of it sent a thrill of exultation tingling through the veins of every Normal student and faculty member. Then the student body became po ses ed with an carnest desire to w loome the victor in a manner befitting the significance of his great victory. That desire soon culminated in action on the part of some of the men. When it was learned what time the champion would arrive, "Prexy" was consulted and proper plans were formulated.

When the 3:30 interurban car arrived from Detroit, twelve hundred wildly enthusiastic Normalites were assembled at Brower street to greet their hero. Immediat ly after he and his coach, Profe sor F. B. McKay, had stepped from the car, they were placed in the Victor's chariot elaborately decorated with our College colors, and were drawn by fifty or more Normal men to Pease Auditorium. Arrived there, the illustrious couple were elevated to the shoulders of some of the men and transferred to the tage to be the center of attraction at the best mass meeting ever held in our institution. Everyone was happy, everyone was bubbling over with true Normal spirit, and oh. how they did yell! "Hub" and "Mac" were both cheered again and again during the brief assembly. President Kenny in his speech of appreciation on behalf of the College said: "It is great to win, but it is greater to be a victor and still retain that innocent, sincere modesty which characterizes Mr. Hubbard.'

At the close of the big meeting "Hub" and "Mac" were again hoisted onto the scapulas of the men and borne triumphantly to the waiting "Herobile" in front of the Auditorium. Then began one of the first exhibitions of student-pirit ever seen in Ypsilanti. A parade line was formed, which was headed by a band of about one hundred mixed instruments, bugles and wash tubs taking precedence over other harmony producers. Then came about one hundred more men, the last group of whom were drawing the conqueror's resplendent chariot. And now came the best feature of the whole procession. At least five hundred Normal girls followed the gorgeous chariot throughout the entire line of march, proving for all time that they Have Normal Spirit.

The line of march led through the main streets and the business section of the city and thence to our hero's home. It indeed did the heart of every spectator good to see the affectionate reception by his mother and father and the response of that twenty-year-old youth, the oratorical champion of six of the greatest states in the Union. After several yells for the Hubbards, the procession then led to Professor McKay's home where he was delivered with appropriate ceremony.

So much for our pageant. Now for the event-leading up to and beyond it. Harry began his oratorical career by winning the Junior public speaking contest last spring. Spurred on by that success, he entered the Peace conte t preliminaries last winter and easily won the right and honor of representing our College in the state contest. That event was held at Albion, March 17, with five colleges and the university represented. Although the competition was decidedly strong, Harry, by a masterful effort, succeeded in capturing first place, thereby winning fifty dollars in gold and the privilege of representing Michigan in the inter-state contest.

The victorious orators of six states, namely, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan competed in the Inter-State Peace Oratorical contest which was held at the James Millikin University, Decatur, Illinois, May 8. Pitted against the most brilliant college orators of the central states, Harry came through that contest with first honors, sixty dollars in prize money, and the honor of representing the central group of states in the National Peace Oratorical contest at Lake Mohonk, New York, May 18. There were six contestants in the national contest, each orator representing a group of states, the different groups being classified as Eastern, Southeastern, Southern, Central, Western, and Pacific. In this contest, up against older and more experienced men, Harry did his best and came from the fray the third best College Peace Orator in the whole United States. He also received seventy dollars as a prize in this contest.

Harry, you have done a wonderful thing for yourself and for your College. We salute vou.

With all due respect to Harry's wonderful ability, no small amount of his success is due to the careful training given him by his coach, Professor F. B. McKay.

LINWAR.

Appreciation

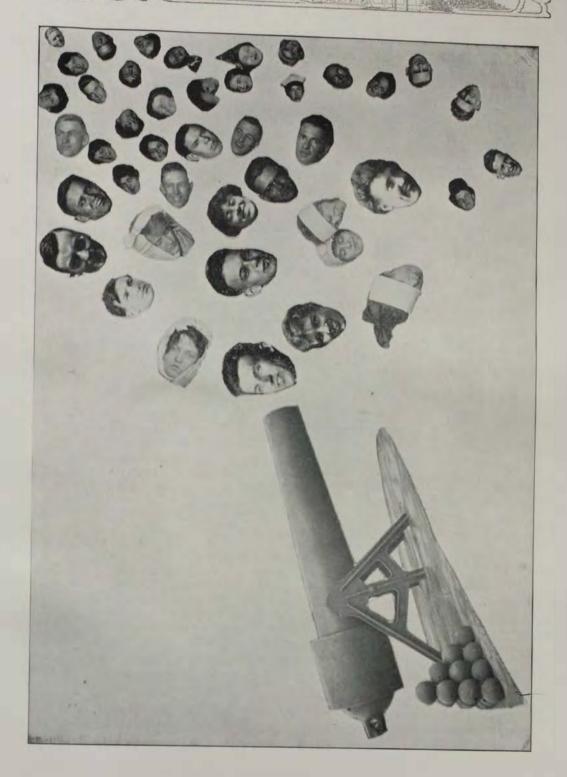

We wish to take this opportunity of expressing to the members of the various classes and organizations our sincere thanks for their interest and co-operation in this work of editing our College Annual. Were it not for the help given by their encouragement and their active, not passive, interest, our efforts would have been in vain. We are especially grateful to Professor W. H. Pcarce, Professor Downing, and Miss Lida Clark for their ever helpful advice and kindly criticisms which have been a large factor in helping us to attain whatever degree of success that we have reached. Special recognition is due the following people for their individual work:
