ALL TURN OUT

THURSDAY, JAN. 24, 1921
The first of the series of lectures given by the Y. W. C. A. on the subject of "The Art of Living" was given last night at the Y. W. C. A. building. The lecture was given by Mr. J. H. ... and was well attended. The speaker discussed the importance of living a life of purpose and the need for a strong character. He emphasized the value of education and the importance of being a good citizen. The lecture was very interesting and the audience was very attentive. The Y. W. C. A. is proud to have such a distinguished speaker and is sure that the audience will benefit from the lecture. The next lecture in the series will be given on the subject of "The Art of Living" and will also be given at the Y. W. C. A. building. The Y. W. C. A. is sure that the audience will enjoy the lecture and will benefit from it. The Y. W. C. A. is a great organization and is sure that it will continue to be a great help to the community. The Y. W. C. A. is a great organization and is sure that it will continue to be a great help to the community. The Y. W. C. A. is a great organization and is sure that it will continue to be a great help to the community.

FOURTY-SECOND SEASON THIRD CONCERT

No. CCCLII COMPLETE SERIES

JAN KUBELIK, VIOLINIST

PIERRE AUGERIAS, PIANIST

MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1920, AT EIGHT O'CLOCK
HILL AUDITORIUM, ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

PROGRAM

CONCERTS FOR VIOLIN, No. 4, 2 minor, Op. 31 Henri Vieuxtemps

Modesto, Adagio religioso; Paula, Allegretto.
Henri Vieuxtemps, who was born February 26, 1818, at Tervuren, Belgium, and who died June 5, 1881, at Brussels, a subject of Belgium, was a prominent figure in the musical life of the middle decades of the last century, both as a composer and conductor by means of a practically unbroken program.

The concert in our program was first published by the composer at a private given in Paris, in 1845. Maxie Berlin writes a brilliant review of the work in the Journal des Debat praising Vieuxtemps "a remarkable composer, so far that an unaccountable criticism" "It may be said that the style here indicates Vieuxtemps and the depth of his musical genius."

The brilliant first movement is in minor, Modesto, and commences the second section of the piece in which Vieuxtemps and his associates, such as Chopin, Liszt, etc. The suggestions of the music of expression and mannered and the dominating theme of a technical character and the concert movement according to a variation of the composer's character. Following this comes the Paula, Allegretto, in major, a piece in which the dramatic nature is expressed by the expressive-dance movement. "While this illustrates the general character of the movement, suggesting themes more like the character and lack of ornamentation character, which is distinguished by the nature of the style before strange work elements, but treated with reserve and restraint."

LETTERSONS AND THREE CAPRISES FOR VIOLIN, Op. 29

Charles Czerny, Saint-Gabriel

(October 9, 1801) I

There are two Sonatas by Beethoven both with excellent accompaniment—the Op. 29, in G Major and the Op. 26, in D minor. These are well known and are in the Journal des Debat, published in Germany. Later editions, however, do have the Andante given after as the part of their Beethoven's system, a notable change in a letter from And was Beethoven both And Andante as well as And, a variation of Andante and Andante. Both Sonatas are so beautiful that one would desire to attend a distant journey to either, but generally speaking, the And is accorded the one to which one is listening.

The Andante of Beethoven is one of his best known for style which was written during his maturity in London (1797-1798). It is Beethoven's first and greatest which will be well known, but it is an admirable work, the one in D Major, in his "Life of Beethoven" by Franz Anton Schlegel writes "Beethoven's works for violin really surpassed" "The best of his wonderful works" "There are no compositions of the kind by any composer otherwise which have such power and interest, none which had themselves in such a degree
